LIFE DEVOTED TO MINISTRY ENDS

The Rev. A. N. Marlatt, 39 Years a
Preacher in M. E. Church, Expires at Connersville Home.

UNCONSCIOUS FOR 13 HOURS

Twice Pastor For Local Church From
1869 to 1871, and From
1876 to 1879.

After a life of active service for the cause of Christianity, thirty-nine years of which he devoted unstintingly to preaching in various Methodist Episcopal churches in Indiana, the Rev. A. N. Marlatt, age seventy-seven years, twice the pastor of the Methodist church in this city, died this morning at his home in Connersville after a prolonged illness. The deceased was the father of Mrs. J. H. Scholl, corner of Jackson and Seventh streets.

Many Rushville people remember well when the Rev. Mr. Marlatt was pastor of the St. Paul M. E. church of Rushville. He assumed the local pastorate first in June, 1869, when in the prime of life, to fill out an unexpired term, and remained until September, 1871. He was sent back here by the conference in September, 1876, five years later, and remained for three years until he was assigned to another church by the conference in September, 1879.

The Rev. Mr. Marlatt retired from the active ministry nine years ago because of declining health. For a man of his age he was in very good health, but was not able to carry on the active and strenuous duties of a pastor. He resided in Connersville, where he was held in high esteem during the nine years after he was superannuated.

About a year ago the venerable old Christian man was stricken with what the physicians believed to be paralysis, but which later developed to be asphasia. At the time his health was broken it was feared that he would not survive, and grave fears were held out lest he would not recover. But his rugged constitution was able to withstand the test and the end was held off for a year although his relatives and close friends knew that death was inevitable in the course of a year or so.

The peculiar course the disease took caused the Rev. Mr. Marlatt to lose the power of speech. This was the reason for the doctors first diagnosing his ailment as paralysis. Although he recovered sufficiently so that he was able to walk about, he could not talk as he did of yore. This irreparable loss was due to a blood clot in the organ of speech. He regained his speech, however, some time ago.

Fistula was the direct cause of his demise. This disease had been wasting his body away for several months and in his weakened condition he was unable to offset its onslaughts. His death occurred at five o'clock this morning. He lost consciousness yesterday afternoon at four o'clock, up to which time he recognized all the members of his family gathered about his bedside.

The Rev. Mr. Marlatt was born June 27, 1835, in an obscure country place in Wayne county, north of Milton, just over the Wayne-Fayette county line. He was the son of Thomas and Elizabeth Marlatt, who moved to Indiana to seek their fortune and settled in Wayne county some time before the birth of their son.

Mr. Marlatt got the best education the country schools of that day afforded. He yearned for a better education, and became a student in As-

WATSON IN WABASH COUNTY

Former Congressman Opens the Campaign at North Manchester.

James E. Watson of this city opened the Republican campaign in Wabash county at North Manchester on Thursday night, when he delivered an address at a theater, which was insufficient to accommodate the crowd. One hundred and twenty-five Republicans from Wabash, the county seat, motored to North Manchester to hear the address. Mr. Watson was introduced by Fred I. King of Wabash, the Republican candidate for secretary of State.

PREPARING TO ATTEND PICNIC

Local Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias, Anticipating Big Time
at Broad Ripple Park.

GUESTS OF FIRST REGIMENT

Local members of the K. of P. lodge are making preparations to attend the U. R. K. of P. First Regiment field day and basket picnic to be held at Broad Ripple park in Indianapolis on Sunday, September 22. The picnic will be the greatest lodge event of the year in the State. Hundreds of knights and their families from all parts of the State will be present for the day and arrangements are being made for a royal entertainment. Although the picnic is in charge of the Uniform Rank it is for all members of the Pythian order.

A feature of the day will be the grand review of the different companies of the State. General Gray, commander of the Indiana brigade, and his staff will review the companies. Col. C. A. Phelps of Newcastle, commander of the third regiment to which this company belongs, has been made inspector.

Col. Samuel Trabue of this city, on the staff of Maj-Gen. A. J. Stobbart, commander of the U. R. K. of P. of the United States, will be present. At least thirty members of the local company will attend, it is expected.

MAY BRING ANNUAL CONFERENCE HERE

Local Ministers Will Ask Jefferson-
ville Meeting For Next Session
of M. E. Preachers.

REV. WYLIE WILL BE RETURNED

The Indiana conference of the Methodist Episcopal church will convene next Tuesday evening at Jeffersonville. The Rev. V. W. Tevis and the Rev. W. H. Wylie will be in attendance from this city.

The conference is attended by about 300 ministers and the sessions are held annually. Rushville will ask for the next conference and so far as is known will not be opposed by any other city. The annual conference means much to any city where it is held and an extra effort will be made to bring it here.

It is practically assured that the Rev. W. H. Wylie will be returned to the St. Paul M. E. church here.

WOULD NOT LET HIM WITHDRAW IT

Bull Moose District Committee Refuses to Let Greenstreet Take
Resignation Back.

THE NOMINEE IS KICKED OUT

Another Convention Will be Held in
Connersville Sept. 23 to Name
Successor.

The news filtered through on the wires this afternoon from Connersville where a meeting of the Bull Moose Sixth district committee, presided over by Rudolph Leeds, the Richmond millionaire publisher, was held, that Joseph A. Greenstreet of Henry county lately nominated at Richmond at the Bull Moose convention as their candidate for congress, was not allowed to withdraw his resignation that he wrote in haste a few days ago when charges were pressed against him by E. F. Warfel, editor of the Richmond Item, B. Dudley Foulke's newspaper, with avowed intention of causing him to resign.

The meeting of the district committee was held in Connersville this afternoon to consider the case. Although the nominee whose scalp Warfel sought was not in attendance he was represented and prepared to defend the onslaughts made on his business integrity by the representative of the man, B. Dud. Foulke, whom he defeated for the nomination.

When he was first assailed, Greenstreet was angered and promptly wrote out his resignation and handed it to the district chairman. Later his friends importuned him to fight the charges, and it is said that he was willing to withdraw the resignation. But the committee this afternoon would not have it that way.

The resignation was accepted and Monday, September 23, was set as the date for a second district convention to select Greenstreet's successor. The convention will be held in Connersville. The Newcastle Courier of yesterday adds the following concerning the rupture in the Bull Moose party in the district:

W. R. Wilson, the Bull Moose chairman in Henry county, Friday was notified by District Chairman Rudolph G. Leeds of Richmond, that the district committee would meet Saturday in Connersville to take up the charges made against Joseph A. Greenstreet of Henry county, the Bull Moose nominee for congress, says the Newcastle Courier. The entire committee is expected to be present and the matter will be thoroughly investigated.

Mr. Wilson will attend the meeting and will be accompanied by Mr. Greenstreet and his attorney, Wrighter R. Steele. They will take with them the books, agreements and receipts used in the closing up of the affairs of the Richmond Handle Co., out of which the charges developed, and it is stated that they will easily refute the unjust accusations.

It is not known what part Ed F. Warfel, editor of William Dudley Foulke's Richmond Item, will take in the procedure. He pressed the charges against Greenstreet and insisted on an investigation.

The Greenstreet-Warfel affair has created a big sensation throughout the district and is being discussed in all political circles. The matter was given publicity in the State papers Friday and was featured in their political columns.

The charges are not given credit in Newcastle, where Mr. Greenstreet is well and favorably known. Here the people have implicit faith in the accused man's honesty and integrity, even if he has "got off" in his politics.

DESERTED WIFE IN A SAD PLIGHT

Willard Bennett, Painter, Leaves City
This Afternoon With Avowed Intention of Never to Return.

TAUNTS SPOUSE WITH "ROLL"

Dejected Woman Thinks Not of Herself But of Two Boys Left
From Family of Eight.

Dejected, and with broken spirit, Mrs. Willard Bennett, 523 West First street, this afternoon told between sobs how her drunken husband, for whom she had given birth to eight children, came home this afternoon after spending the week in New Salem and left his family penniless and without means of support, packed his suit case, and with an oath, declared that he was leaving Rushville never to return.

"I do not care if I ever see his face on earth again," said Mrs. Bennett bitterly, "now that he has deserted me, but I do believe that he should support his two young boys he left here for me to care for."

Mrs. Bennett said her husband left home hurriedly last Monday morning without leaving her a cent to buy food for a week. She said he had worked on the New Salem school building all week, and returned home this afternoon, only to leave again for good.

"He pulled a wad of bills larger than I could grasp in my hand," Mrs. Bennett related, "and then taunted me by asking if I wanted any of that and if I thought I could use any of it. He swore at me and tore around the house, cursing at every breath."

A pitiful tale Mrs. Bennett recited to a newspaper reporter whom she called to tell of her husband's actions. Her life has been one of hardship and toil. According to her version, life has not held out much of the bright and happy side. She has spent the greater part of it toiling over a washtub to earn a meager fifty cents to buy victuals to keep body and soul together.

Nothing is left but a broken hulk of a once beautiful woman. Willard Bennett wooed and won her hand, she cried this afternoon, as she rubbed the tears from her eyes with the corner of her big blue apron, and she loved him truly. He promised to protect and support her, but he did neither after a few years of married life, she declared.

"He has been a drinking man all his life," Mrs. Bennett said "and I have stuck to him through thick and thin, at first never whimpering or complaining. I have washed and supported my children, and have toiled day and night for their good, and little has he contributed toward their life."

"I stood him as long as I could. Now that he has actually deserted me, I do not want to see him again. The only thing I hope is that I can get some recourse through the law."

Mrs. Bennett's life has been one of devotion to her children. Although bent of frame and with withered face, she still thinks of them first, never considering her own sad plight at all. Seven boys and a girl compose her family and only three of them are left at home, two of them so small that they can not help to make a living.

Mrs. Bennett bemoaned the fate of her two smallest boys. One of them is in school, but she doubted if he could stay much longer because his clothes would not last long. The other boy, the mother said, had not been started to school yet because he did not have fit clothes to wear.

Mrs. Bennett asked if she could bring any action against her husband, and it was suggested that she might file an affidavit against him for wife desertion. She said she would see the proper officials at once.

COURT WAS QUIET TODAY

Elizabeth Gallimore Was Given Judgment For $200.

Not much business was transacted today in the circuit court and Judge Blair returned to his home in Shelbyville shortly before noon. Elizabeth Gallimore was given judgment for $200 against William Downard on an account. The case was heard during the April term.

One new suit was filed today. Brown Brothers filed an account suit against Lee Smiley demanding $150. Kiplinger and Williams represent the plaintiff company.

FORMER WEALTHY FARMER A SUICIDE

Leroy Hawkins, Once Residing Near
Glenwood, Whose Son Lives Here
Dies by Own Hand.

WAS LIVING IN CINCINNATI

Leroy Hawkins, formerly a well-to-do farmer and stock buyer living on the Rush-Fayette county line between Glenwood and Falmouth, committed suicide in Cincinnati, where he has been living for some time, either late last night or early this morning, according to a dispatch received today in Connersville, where Hawkins has relatives and once lived. Hawkins was at one time wealthy, it is said, and after the death of his wife, a daughter of Mrs. Jack Smith of 532 North Jackson street, he started in to dissipate his fortune. Hawkins' son, Deloris Hawkins Smith, who has been reared by his grandmother and aunt Miss Emma Smith received news of his father's death this morning, but it is said that the intelligence that his father killed himself was not conveyed to him. Deloris left at once for Connersville, where Hawkins' body will be taken from Cincinnati. Mrs. Hawkins died when her son was an infant. Mrs. Henry Melhorn of Indianapolis is a sister of the suicide. No details of the suicide could be learned late today.

Mr. Hawkins visited his son here a few weeks ago.

MAY NOMINATE STEVENS

Judicial Convention Still in Session
at Late Hour.

Word from Shelbyville late this afternoon was in effect that the Sixteenth judicial convention had not yet named a nominee for prosecutor. James Bingham, one time attorney general occupied most of the convention's time with a speech and had not finished at a late hour. So far as is known, Albert Stevens of this city, is the only candidate out for the nomination. It is more than likely that Mr. Stevens will receive the nomination.

Ground is being broken at Winfield, L. I. for a school for women, where plumbing, building, masonry and other trades will be taught. The school will have room for 150 pupils and over sixty applications have already been received.

IS DEAD MAN A RICH RECLUSE?

Individual Who Expired Suddenly at
Knightstown Believed to be John
Montgomery of Kokomo.

SAID TO HAVE HAD PROPERTY

Harry Pea of This City Says the
Description Answers That of Montgomery.

Was the man, whose dead body lies unclaimed at Knightstown, John Montgomery of Kokomo, reputed to own real estate there and to be worth between five and six thousand dollars?

Harry Pea of this city believes that the man who dropped dead in a Knightstown hotel last Sunday was John Montgomery, and further proof of the theory is found in the fact that Dr. F. J. Drake of Knightstown, who has taken it upon himself to learn the identity of the dead man and locate his heirs, has written to the Kokomo police that the man, whoever he is, said just before his death that he owned real estate in Kokomo and Bartholomew county.

When Harry Pea read of the man's death, and his description, he at once surmised that he was none other than John Montgomery of Kokomo. He said that the description answered Montgomery exactly. All of the other circumstances fit it perfectly, too, because Montgomery was a wanderer, and remained at home little. Mr. Pea was well acquainted with Montgomery and says that the description answers in every detail to the appearance of Montgomery the last time he saw him.

Harry Pea communicated with the police Wednesday, after he had read of the body of a man believed to be John Monroe or John Monroe Walker, had been unidentified at Knightstown. He told Police Chief McAllister that he believed the dead man was John Montgomery of Kokomo, and an effort was made that afternoon to find an automobile to take them to Knightstown so that Mr. Pea could see the body. No machine could be obtained just at that time, and the idea was given up.

The Greensburg News sized up the dead man as John Monroe, well known in the northern part of Decatur county and the southern part of Rush county. Monroe, according to the Greensburg News, spent his winters in the old time works near Williamstown, and last spring left for Knightstown, where he said he intended to follow the tinner's trade. The following from the Kokomo Tribune has to do with the information received there:

Chief of Police Windoffer has received a letter from Dr. F. J. Drake of Knightstown asking information about a man named John Monroe or John Monroe Walker or John Montgomery. A traveling tinner who was known by the foregoing name, died at Knightstown September 7, 1912, and the body is waiting for word from friends or relatives.

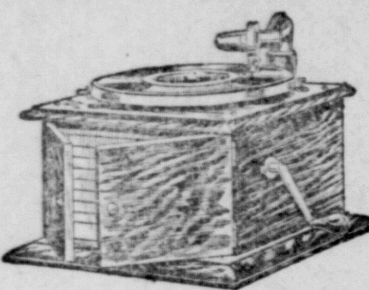

The man was between 75 and 80 years of age and had a full beard, which was not very gray.

On his death bed he was asked a few questions but he was too far gone to answer many. He divulged the information that he owned real estate in this city and also land in Bartholomew county. The abstracters' records show no such property owner recorded.

GOOD HIGHWAYS ARE ECONOMICAL

Means Big Saving in Crops Because Loss is Sustained in Hauling to Market.

450,000 AUTOS IN COUNTRY

Improved Roadways Will Also be Helpful to This Class of Travelers.

That not less than $250,000,000 would be saved to the country in the cost of hauling the present record breaking crop if 20 per cent. of the public highways of the country were improved, is the assertion of J. E. Pennybacker, Jr., executive secretary of the American road congress, which is to be held in Atlantic City September 30 to October 5. Mr. Pennybacker, before becoming the secretary of the American Association for Highway Improvement, which, with the American Automobile Association and the National Association of Machinery and Material Manufacturers, is holding a convention at Atlantic City, was the chief of the road management department in the United States office of public roads, has made a comparative study of the cost of hauling crops over good and bad roads.

Because of his knowledge of the actual needs of the country, Mr. Pennybacker was selected as the executive secretary of the American road congress, which is to crystallize the road movement in America. In an interview Mr. Pennybacker says that he believes that the American road congress will so influence public sentiment that it will be merely a matter of a few years before 20 per cent. of the public highways of the United States will have been improved. At the present time little over 8 per cent. of the public highways are of the improved type.

"The government's prediction that the crop now being harvested will exceed any previous year's yield," said Mr. Pennybacker, "should serve to call attention to the great losses that are being sustained by farmers and consumers in the hauling of crops. It is estimated that the improvement of the main roads of this country, approximately 20 per cent., would result in an annual saving of at least $250,000,000 in the cost of hauling alone, which would be sufficient to improve fifty thousand miles of road at a further cost of $5,000 a mile. In five years this would improve 250,000 miles, which would be sufficient to bring the total mileage of improved roads up to 20 per cent."

White Wife of Black Champion Who Ended Life With a Pistol.

Chicago, Sept. 14.—It now transpires that Mrs. Jack Johnson, who killed herself with a pistol shot, long had bitterly regretted her marriage to the negro. On the recent trip to Las Vegas, where Johnson fought Jim Flynn, Mrs. Johnson is said to have told friends that everyone shunned her because she had married a negro and that she was unhappy. She said to a negro woman caller: "I am a white woman and am tired of being a social outcast. I deserve all of my misery for marrying a black man. Even the negroes don't respect me; they hate me. I intend to end it all."

WALDO DECLARES HE IS NOT RESPONSIBLE

Police Force Named By a Civil Service Committee.

New York, Sept. 14.—Following his chief, Mayor Gaynor, on the witness stand at the aldermanic committee's investigation of the police department, Police Commissioner Waldo put the responsibility for the character of the men in his department squarely up to the municipal civil service committee. He said that investigation of applicants for appointment as policemen, which formerly was made by a special bureau of the department after the civil service commission had certified a list, had been abandoned by his orders and at the mayor's direction because, as he believed, two investigations meant a duplication of work and because a new bureau was established in the civil service commission for the purpose. The records of certain applicants in the possession of the police department, showing that these would-be policemen had been arrested for this, and that the other thing, Mr. Waldo said, he had turned over to the civil service commission, and when the same names were returned to him he appointed the men to the department on the assumption that the commission had made a proper investigation of them.

Commissioner Waldo refused to waive immunity before testifying.

NO CHANCE FOR VOTE THIS YEAR

"Lawyers' Amendment" Has Had Its Ineffectual Day.

WILL NOT BE ON THE BALLOT

Attorney General Honan Holds That Proposed Constitutional Amendment Giving the Legislature the Right to Prescribe Qualifications For Admission to Practice Law in the Indiana Courts Is No Longer Pending.

Indianapolis, Sept. 14.—In an opinion to Secretary of State Ellingham, Attorney General Honan takes the view that the proposed amendment to the state constitution giving the legislature the right to prescribe qualifications for admission to practice law in Indiana courts is not to go on the ballot this year.

This proposed amendment failed to get a majority of all votes cast at the election of 1910. It also failed in 1906. Mr. Honan bases his opinion on a decision of the supreme court in 1880, in which it was held that constitutional amendments shall not be submitted again to the people except through a valid statute. Hence as the legislature of 1911 took no steps to submit this measure again, it is the opinion of the attorney general that it is not now pending.

This proposed amendment, commonly known as the "lawyers' amendment," got considerable notice during the argument in the last legislature concerning the act providing for a "new" constitution, since held invalid. By many the view was taken that since the "lawyers' amendment" had failed because of a lack of majority of all votes cast at the election, and not because votes had been registered against it, that it still was pending, and was a bar to any other amendments being submitted.

HAZING ENDS IN THE DEATH OF A STUDENT

Four College Boys Held On Murder Charge.

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 14.—Upon the charge of murder, four terror-stricken youths stood defendants in court, the result of the hazing of Isaac William Rand, son of a prominent lumberman of Smithfield.

The accused are sophomores at the University of North Carolina. They took Rand from his bed and made him sing and dance until he fell from a barrel and cut his throat on a broken bottle. The accused belong to widely known families. They are Robert W. Oldham of Raleigh; A. R. Styron, ministerial candidate, of Wilmington; W. C. Merriman, Wilmington, and A. C. Hatch of Monroe.

The testimony of the court was that after they attended a reception to the freshmen by President Venable, they took Rand from his room and placed him on the barrel and forced him to sing and dance.

Robert Wellons, roommate of Rand, was also forced to dance and sing, and in a fall received slight injuries. Rand dropped from the barrel, fell upon the broken bottle, which pierced the jugular vein and carotid artery, and bled to death in ten minutes. Two of the sophomores fled, but the other two called doctors. The boy died before a doctor could reach Rand, and at the instance of President Venable the four men were arrested. Governor Kitchen called upon President Venable to go deeply into the matter, and be prepared to give a statement at the special meeting of the trustees called for this purpose.

"These are but a few great economic facts which will be brought to the attention of the American people at the American road congress, to be held in Atlantic City on September 30 to October 5. Once the people realize the great waste involved in bad roads there will be little delay in the improvement of the main arteries of commerce throughout the country. CELERY LAND

Several Hundred Acres Near South Bend to Be Cultivated.

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 14.—Convinced that the rich, black soil of the Kankakee marsh is ideal for the cultivation of celery, four men, most prominent of whom is C. K. Warren, millionaire featherbone manufacturer, of Three Oaks, Mich., will make the South Bend district one of the most important celery growing centers of the country. Hollanders from Kalamazoo, Mich., have been assisting in experiments, which have proved successful, and it has been decided to plant 200 or 300 acres of land lying in the extreme southwestern part of the city, in celery next year.

One large family of workers is necessary for the cultivation of five acres. Already a dozen houses are being built for Hollanders from Kalamazoo. Three crops will be raised each season. The crops ripen two weeks apart. Approximately 20,000 plants are raised to the acre and when disposed of at wholesale bring about $400 to the acre.

Dashed Into Iron Pole.

Gary, Ind., Sept. 14.—Four men, three of whom are Catholic priests, were seriously injured in an automobile accident here. The priest who was driving the machine lost control of it and dashed into an iron pole. The most seriously injured is the Rev. Father Edward Kowleski, rector of St. Mary's church, South Chicago. He was cut and bruised about the head. The party was en route to Hammond to attend a mission. The injured were taken to a local hospital.

Dragged by Freight Train.

Lawrenceburg, Ind., Sept. 14.—Albert J. Murray, aged thirty-seven, an electrician, fell when he attempted to climb on a moving freight train on the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern railroad. He was dragged nearly a mile, his clothing catching on the trucks of the car. His injuries may terminate fatally.

Horse Falls on Man, Killing Him.

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 14.—Ray Kirkwood, aged thirty, a farmer living east of the city, was fatally injured when he was thrown from his horse and crushed beneath the animal, which fell on him. The horse stumbled and Kirkwood was thrown. He died a few hours later.

Covington Highwaymen Sentenced.

Covington, Ind., Sept. 14.—Hubert Howard was sentenced to state's prison for a term of from ten to twenty years by Judge Schoonover for burglary. Howard held up and robbed three men in the Big Four station on Aug. 18.

He Claims Self-Defense.

Madison, Ind., Sept. 14.—William Alexander was shot and instantly killed by Lon Thornton, night ferryman. The latter says Alexander was drinking and attacked Thornton, who shot in self-defense. Thornton is in custody.

Incendiaries at Work.

Linton, Ind., Sept. 14.—The home of Levi Davis was destroyed by fire. Kindling wood was piled between the screen and the door and saturated with oil. The family was visiting in Martin county, and no one was at home.

Women Take a Hand.

Norwalk, O., Sept. 14.—Dressed as men, half a dozen women of Clarksfield, a small town near here, after warning an eighteen-year-old girl to leave the village, caught her on the road after dark, stripped off her clothing and gave her a coat of tar. Following the tarring she and her sister, aged twenty, left town.

Caught by Falling Tree.

Muncie, Ind., Sept. 14.—Zachariah Johnson, aged seventy-five, a veteran of the civil war, was killed while chopping down a tree on his farm. He was caught between the falling tree and a wire fence.

TERSE TELEGRAMS

Colonel Roosevelt is now addressing the people of Utah.

While an aviator was volplaning down into the aerodrome at Ponferrada, Spain, he smashed into the grandstand and ten persons were seriously injured.

Mrs. Martha Lehmane, the wife of Frederick Lehmane, a New Rochelle (N. Y.) business man, was shot and fatally wounded while snipe hunting with a party near Port Washington, L. I.

The appointment of receivers for the United States Motor company at New York was followed by the appointment of ancillary receivers in other states where the company has property.

A strike of 2,000 men engaged in the building trades in Cincinnati is in progress as a result of strife between the International Association of Steam Fitters and the United Association of Plumbers.

Wavering returns seem to point to the failure of the Vermont Republicans to gain a majority for their candidate for governor in the legislature. Opponents claim they will be fourteen short.

The Cunningham coal claims in Alaska, involving alleged fraudulent patents, which precipitated the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy, finally have been disposed of, the interior department holding that the patents were improperly allowed and that the entry should be canceled.

CEREAL CROPS IN NEW RECORD

Greater Than Ever Before in Country's History, According U. S. Bureau Report.

20.3 PER CENT. MORE IN WEIGHT

At Same Time Farm Prices Are Lower Than They Were a Year Ago.

The cereal crops of the country, from recent indications, will reach the unprecedented total production of 133,016,000 tons, Victor H. Olmsted, Chief of the Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Statistics, announced. With record-breaking crops of corn, spring wheat, oats, barley, rye and buckwheat, the year's harvest will be 20.3 per cent greater in weight than last year's production, 6.1 per cent greater than the big year of 1910 and 16.2 per cent greater than that of 1909.

Prospects for the record-breaking potato crop indicate it will be 36 per cent more than last year, when the crop was very short, 14 per cent more than in 1910, and 2 per cent more than in 1909, when the previous record production was harvested.

The hay yield is estimated at about 31 per cent more than last year, and 4 per cent more than in 1910 and 1909.

August, like July, was decidedly favorable for crop development through the country, Department of Agriculture official declare. They figure the composite condition of all crops on September 1 as being 16.5 per cent. better than at that time a year ago, and 4.1 per cent. better than the average condition on September 1 in recent years.

The condition (or production if harvested) of various crops on September 1, compared with their average (not normal condition on that date of recent years, follows: Peaches, 130; apples, 126.2; spring wheat, 118.7; oats, 117.1; pears 110.8; hemp, 109.9; barley, 109.5; potatoes, 109.5; cabbage, 108.4; flaxseed, 107.5; cloverseed, 106.9; tomatoes, 106.5; onions, 106.4; millet, 106.2; buckwheat, 106; grapes, 105.4; Kafir corn, 105.2; alfalfa, 105.1; watermelons, 104.7; canteloupes, 103.9; oranges, 103.8; broom corn, 103.2; hops, 102.4; sorghum, 102; cotton, 101.6; corn, 101.2; sugar beets, 101; rice, 101; lima beans, 100.6; dry beans, 100.5; tobacco, 99.4; cranberries, 99.1; peanuts, 98.6; sweet potatoes, 98.4; lemons, 97.8; sugar cane, 93.2.

There was a greater decline in the prices paid to farmers from August 1 to September 1, this year, than there was last year, the Department of Agriculture announced today. The average farm prices of the important crops (corn, wheat, oats, barley, rye, flaxseed, potatoes, tobacco, cotton and hay, which represent about three fourths of the value of all the country's crops) declined 7 per cent. during the month, while in that time last year they declined in price only 4.4 per cent. and during the last four years the decline in price averaged 3.8 per cent. The average of farm prices on September 1 was 2.8 per cent lower than on that date last year, while it was four tenths of one per cent higher than on September 1, 1910, 3.5 per cent. higher than in 1909, and 5.2 per cent higher than in 1908.

Prices paid to farmers on September 1, this year, with comparison of prices paid on the same last year follow:

Wheat	1912	1911.
Corn	$ .776	$ .650
Oats	.858	.848
Barley	.350	.404
Rye	.535	.770
Buckwheat	.708	.769
Flaxseed	.766	.740
Potatoes	1.626	2.036
Hay	.650	1.137
Cotton	12.140	14.610
Butter	.113	.118
Chickens	.242	.231
Eggs	.113	.111
	.191	.174
On August 15 farm prices averaged:
Hogs	$7.110	$6.540
Wheat	6.620	5.930
Butter	5.380	4.390
Sheep	4.260	3.980
Lambs	5.600	5.250

DEATH OF NOGI THRILLS JAPAN

Old Hero and His Wife Commit Hari Kari.

A SUPREME ACT OF DEVOTION

With Stoicism and Loyalty Worthy of Ancient Samurai, to Whose Traditions Gen. Nogi Fondly Clung, Hero of Port Arthur and His Faithful Wife Withdraw From Funeral of Beloved Emperor and Give Up Their Lives.

Tokio, Sept. 14.—Following the funeral ceremonies for Emperor Mutsuhito, General Count Marosuke Nogi, supreme military councillor, the hero at the siege of Port Arthur and many other notable engagements, and his wife committed hari kari, and died soon afterward from their self-inflicted wounds.

General Nogi and the countess had attended the funeral services of the emperor at the palace here. At the conclusion of the ceremony at the palace they withdrew to their modest home in Akasaki, a suburb of Tokio, and there began preparations for their end. The general cut his throat with a short sword, while the countess committed hari kari. A student who resided with the Nogis found them dying.

The tragedy created a profound sensation. Those who knew General Nogi well declared that his calmness in killing himself was the kind of stoicism he always had displayed.

It is written that after the capture of Tientsin in the war between China and Japan, General Nogi, then commander of a brigade, stood apart from the other officers who were directing the reconstruction of walls broken by the Japanese fire, and when they looked toward him they found he was in tears. Nogi turned to them and called for a "banzai" to the emperor, through whose virtue the victory was won. Nogi seldom took credit to himself for the greatness of his exploits. It was the merit of the emperor which had won the battle. He was merely the servant and the greatness of the emperor had prevailed.

Notable Military Career.

Nogi sprang from the race of the Samurai. He was born in Choshu, a few miles from Tokio, in 1849. The generalship of Nogi first sprang into prominence at the battle of Kinchow, fought during the Japanese-Chinese war in the fall of 1894. Kinchow, a walled city on the Liaotung peninsula, was in the same area of conflict where Nogi won distinction in the Russian war ten years later. At the close of the former war Nogi retired to his house in Tokio, where he spent his time over his war books and war maps, preparing for the struggle that he knew must come against Russia. Nogi sent his two sons to the military college, with the intention of preparing them for the war when it should come. Both sons went to the front. The two boys were killed, the elder at Nanshan, the younger in the melee around 203 Metre hill in front of Port Arthur.

Nogi's capture of Port Arthur in the Russian-Jap war, after a stubborn and prolonged siege, was viewed as the greatest feat of his career. The terms of the capitulation of the stronghold were settled in a straw-thatched hut. Nogi came up to greet General Stoessel on horseback. The little Japanese dismounted and grasped the hand of the Russian standing on the ruins of the last fort to be sent skyward under the impulse of an exploded mine.

"I never expected to meet so pleasant a gentleman," said Stoessel, afterward. "He seemed more like an old friend than the leader of a hostile army."

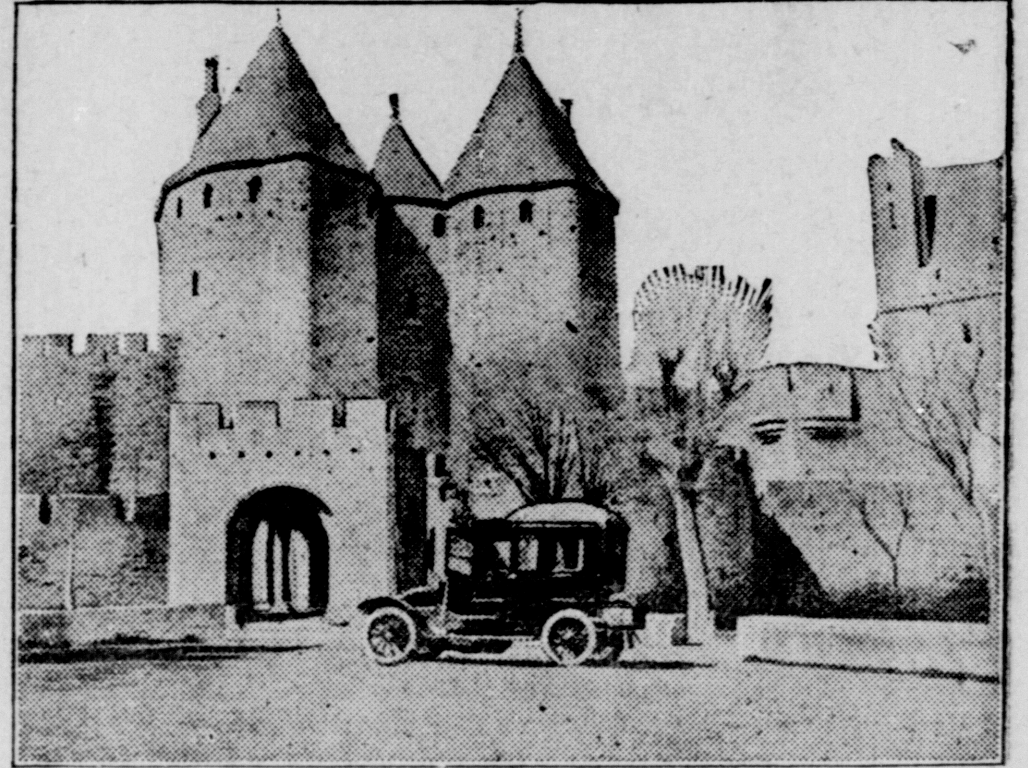

In 1907 Nogi, at the command of the emperor, took the honorary presidency of a school for young peeresses. He put them under such rigorous rule that their preceptress rebelled. Nogi ordered them to wear cotton dresses and discard the silk gowns to which they were used. When the preceptress objected, he ordered her to leave and the young peeresses threatened to follow. But so strict was the general's military rule that they remained and the preceptress went. Nogi took that place out of loyalty to the emperor. And he tried to call back to Japan the old ideals of Spartan life from which he feared the people were falling away. It may be that his death was an attempt to remind the people of the old Japan's strict rules of living, an attempt in which he involved his wife.

Shidzu, whom he married more than thirty years ago, was fifty-three years old when she shared her husband's death. She had been schooled in the military traditions and followed Nogi's life with the faithfulness of the ancient rule. She accepted the death of her two sons as part of her obligation to the emperor.

Two Shot From Ambush.

Buffalo, Sept. 14.—Mystery surrounds the probably fatal shooting of George Hanner of this city, and the wounding of his wife while riding in their automobile near North Tonawanda. It is said that Hanner, a wealthy man, will probably die. The shooting was from ambush. Hanner and his wife insist that they have not the slightest idea who was responsible.

Simon De Montfort's Towers

Among the interesting structures in the old city of Carcassonne, in southern France, is that here pictured, known as Simon de Montfort's Towers. It is said these towers were designed to represent the bows of a ship in order to commemorate the builder's safe return from the crusades.

CURING DISEASED METALS

It has been discovered that the metal aluminum has a disease, and a careful diagnosis by chemists discloses the fact that it is probably due to the action of water containing lime. Tin is made ill by extreme cold, and some other metals have their pests just as plants and vegetables have, and it takes careful investigation and a long series of experiments to learn the source of the trouble. The aluminum illness was treated first by Professors Heyn and Bauer of the laboratory at Gross-Lichterfelde, near Berlin.

Cooking utensils were found to be most affected, and the experiments were begun on several pots which were made by cold rolling. Numerous spots on their surface lay in particular directions, running straight on the flat bottom, and in curved lines on the convex sides. They corresponded to the direction of stretching of the metal. Chemical tests of the deposit at the spots indicated showed the presence of water, alumina and lime. Similar metal was then subjected to all the conditions that had surrounded the use of the kitchen utensils. It was early concluded that neither impurities in the metal nor atmospheric changes were responsible for the disease.

It appeared, however, that city water had a deleterious effect on the general health of the aluminum sheets undergoing the test. The thickest sheets were attacked by the city water. After analyzing the water and continuing the experiments with different kinds of water, Professor Heyn was able to decide that lime salts were probably the cause of the disease, and suggests that aluminum utensils be subjected as little as possible to limy water.

OBSERVE ANCIENT CEREMONY

The ancient ceremony of the planting of the "penny hedge," or horn-garth, was observed recently near Whitby, England. The custom is supposed to be of feudal origin. Its observance is connected with a farm about six miles from Whitby near Robin Hood's Bay, and if the ceremony be not duly observed "on the morn of the eve of Ascension Day" the farm lands must revert to the holder or holders of the manorial rights. The tenant of the farm along with the bailiff lays the hedge with "ten stakes, ten strout-stowers, and ten yedders." The ancient horn is blown, the tenant shouts, "Out on ye, out on ye," and the ceremony is over.

WARMING THE WORLD

Artificial warming of the world is one of the greatest of modern problems and yet the earth is itself a vast furnace, whose flames are sometimes aggressively active and destructive. Italians are planning to use some of this heat. A boiler is to be installed at some point where the internal fires of Vesuvius are accessible and hot water is to be piped to the neighboring towns.

MAKING SOFT IRON HARD

The manner in which soft iron may be converted into hard faced armor plate by the infusion process appears in the case of a test which has recently been made. A bullet was fired from a rifle at a distance of thirty-six feet against the surface of an iron plate which had been treated by the infusion process, striking with a velocity of 2,700 feet a second. The hardened surface caused the rifle ball to rebound with such directness that it struck the stock of the gun from which it had been fired, imbedding itself in the wood and narrowly escaping the person of the marksman by whom the shot had been fired.

GREAT PAGODA OF WU-CHANG

The immense pagoda, built in the best Chinese style of architecture, is one of the interesting sights in the great and progressive city of Wu-Chang, the capital of the province of Hu-peh.

QUEER LIVING FISH NET

A peculiar method of fishing is employed by the natives of certain of the islands of Oceania. At stated intervals about two hundred of them will assemble on the beach, and all together plunge into the water, each carrying a branch of the cocoa palm.

At a given distance from the shore they will turn toward it, and form a compact half circle, each holding his palm branch perpendicularly in the water, thus forming a kind of seine. The leader of the party gives a signal, and this living net approaches the shore gradually, in perfect order, driving before it a multitude of fishes. Surrounded by this living wall and caught in the cocoa palm branches many of the fish are cast on the sands and others are killed with sticks.

SAN FRANCISCO'S SUICIDES

Official statistics show that more people take their own lives in San Francisco, in proportion to population, than in any other city on the continent.

Part of Wall of Hadrian

The great Roman barrier in Great Britain, known as the Wall of Hadrian, extends from Bownes on the Solway to Wallsend on the Tyne, and is 73 1/2 miles in length. It swerves from a straight line only to take in the boldest elevations on its route, and it never bends in a curve but always in an angle. It was built to repel the incursions of the northern barbarians into the territory occupied by the Romans. The part of the wall here shown is at Cuddy's Crag.

Democratic "Economy."

The managers of the Western headquarters of the National Republican Committee are compiling figures on the records of the Democrats in Congress, which they declare will make unpleasant campaign reading for the opponents of President Taft. These figures will show that more than a dozen investigations, which have cost already $100,000 in the aggregate—with an equal amount appropriated for a continuation of various inquiries—have been under way since the Democratic party came into control in the lower body. At the beginning of the Sixty-second Congress it was declared that the Democratic party would "show up the extravagance of Republican rule for the last sixteen years." Nine committees on expenditures in the several government departments were set to work. Not one of them has produced anything which will be of aid to the Democrats in seeking control of the next House.

In addition to these nine committees various special committees were set on the trail of the trusts and other things supposed to be inimical to the public welfare. Chief among those was the Stanley Steel investigating Committee. It investigated for more than a year, spent $39,000, compiled a voluminous record which no one except the members of the committee has read—and made a report. There were nine members of the committee and five separate reports were filed.

The bills suggested by the Stanley Committee were referred to the House Judiciary Committee, which promises "to give them attention when we take up the trust question."

Meanwhile the Judiciary Committee has an appropriation of $25,000 to conduct an independent investigation of the trusts, and has just started on the task of spending the money.

The Pujo Committee was allotted $150,000 to discover the "money trusts." It has spent to date about $8,000.

The House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, desiring publicity of its own, was voted $25,000 to investigate the shipping trusts.

The Hardwick Sugar Investigating Committee spent $11,486 investigating transactions a decade old, in which several financiers who are now dead figured. It filed a report months ago which even its friends acknowledged was a "milk and water" affair. The report has not been mentioned since its presentation and will not make a hit in the campaign.

Especially disappointing from the Democratic point of view has been the work of the House Committee on Expenditures in the Department of the Interior, commonly called the Graham Committee. This committee expended $10,472 on investigations of the Interior Department. It abandoned the fake Comptroller Bay charges; dropped the "Dick to Dick" forgery; flinched a bit with the White Earth Indian reservation "scandal," and now promises to make a report some time on the ancient Warren fence law controversy in Wyoming.

The Committee on Expenditure in the Postoffice Department collected a record of nearly 8,000 printed pages on the old Lewis Publishing Company case, which dates back to 1907. More than $7,000 was spent. No report has been filed.

The Committee on Expenditures in the Department of Agriculture investigated the Wiley-McCabe controversy, the Everglades charges and the meat inspection service, at a cost of $3,216. None of the reports was surprising, nor did the committee live up to expectations in furnishing campaign material.

This is also true of the committee which began an investigation of the State Department. The "report" of this committee consisted of a letter written by its Democratic chairman to Representative Cline, of Indiana, who had nothing to do with the investigation, but who is preparing a speech for use during the campaign. Representative Beall, who heads the Committee on Expenditures in the Department of Justice, devoted much labor to inquiry into the Greene and Gaynor case, now a decade old, on the assumption that the department paid excessive fees to special attorneys. Mr. Beall is going to file a report later, perhaps.

Other committees which started out months ago to uncover "rottenness" in the government departments in Washington have abandoned their search and no reports have been filed. It is expected that Democratic spellbinders during the approaching campaign will talk loudly of the tariff, but there will be a woful lack of oratory concerning the scandals in the government affairs which the House committees sought at great public expense but wholly without results.

Farm Crops and H. C. L.

One of the reasons for the increasing cost of living is furnished by a census bulletin just issued, although no mention of that detail is contained therein. The bulletin shows that while the market value of the leading crops increased enormously, the quantity made only a slight gain, in most cases. The aggregate selling price of the crops of all sorts jumped from $2,999,000,000 in 1899 to $5,487,000,000 in 1909, or a gain of 83 per cent, while the quantity of those things cereal and other, increased only 9.9 per cent.

Here is one decidedly obvious cause of the advance in the cost of living. While 1909 is the latest year covered by this census leaflet, the story which it tells would merely be emphasized if it were brought down to to-day. There has been no material increase in the output since 1909, but the market value of the aggregate yield has gone up far in this time. We pay more for our food, and also for our clothing, the cotton fabrics as well as the woolen, than we did then. Cereals increased in production in the decade here covered by only 1.7 per cent, but their value rose 79.8 per cent. Cotton production increased in that time only 11.7 per cent, but the producers got $17.3 per cent more for their crop.

The remedy, of course, is to increase the output so as to make it come nearer meeting the demand than it has done in recent years. The 21 per cent. growth of the country's population in the past decade was several times as great as the expansion in cotton and wool, taken together, while it was many times greater than that in the food articles. Here is a chance for that so-called "scientific farming," of which we hear much. On far poorer soil the European wheat raiser produces from 50 to 80 per cent. more of that cereal, on an average, than does the American farmer. Incidentally, here is the chief reason why our exports of agricultural products have fallen off materially in recent years. Prices are too high for European consumers.

Newcastle would be in a sad plight if Rushville did not hold a revival occasionally so that the newspapers could coyly observe "that they are going to have another big revival down at Rushville to back up the backsliders."

And that reminds us again—pardon, please, for the repetition—of the woman who was accused of backsliding during the Orr meeting a year ago last June when she refused to attend because the seats didn't have backs on them.

About time these United States of ours come across with a nice big crop to ease the palate of the common "pep." There's a freight car shortage. Who hides all those cars anyway?

The Kokomo Tribune, very sagely mark you, opines that Orville Hodson, the Hartford City boy who has eluded all the police forces in Indiana and Kentucky and copped out a bride while down in Louisville, will pass a forged check on some policeman the first thing you know.

With dismay we note the Big Bull Moose delivered a speech at Oskosh and didn't mention Armageddon or battling for the Lord.

Many thanks for those little drops of water this morning.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

BOOSTING THE RATIO.

(Sullivan Union.)

When it comes to the publication of a real newspaper, the Indianapolis Star, in its over-zealous efforts for the progressive cause, seeks to distort the facts to suit its own purposes. Through the columns of the Star it is noted that readers have called the Star's attention to this fact. The Star has attempted to deny such charges and in a statement to an inquiring newspaper asked that the said paper be more specific.

Here is a specific statement for the Star. When the recent progressive county convention was held in Sullivan a representative of the Star sent a story of the convention by telegraph. The article stated that nineteen delegates participated in the convention, but when the Star printed the story the next day, its Sullivan telegram stated that 200 progressives took part in the convention.

Can the Star make a specific statement in regard to this matter?

The telegram to the Star is on file here, under date of August 13, and the issue of the Star of the 14th of August states that the number was two hundred.

It is all right for the Star to be zealous in its editorial columns for the cause it espouses, but it should not distort the facts in its news columns. Once convicted of falsifying and a newspaper's readers will hesitate to believe anything it has to say.

Terms Hod Stillwell Debaucher of Voters

(Winchester Herald.)

This week the Bull Moosers held a rally at Winchester. The Indianapolis Star described it in glowing terms, but here in part is the Winchester Herald's version of it: * * * Although the Herald cannot, with regard for strict truth, endorse the glowing statement of the Indianapolis Star that "thousands braved the heat to hear the candidates talk" and that "an audience of three thousand gathered in the afternoon beneath the grateful shade of the elm trees" and occupied the "seats built for two thousand people." Yet it can be cheerfully said that the day was warm, that the candidates did talk, and that the seats were full, even if the grateful elm were but poor maples and the seats held a hundred and fifty men, women and children. And for the sake of clarity it may be hoped that the slight mistakes of the Star were not deliberate and wilful misrepresentations but radiant imaginings of an enthusiastic reporter.

On the estimate of a well known Bull Moose of this city, about four hundred and fifty voters heard Toner and Beveridge in the afternoon, and, we were going to say, half that number heard the Honorable Horace Stillwell in the morning, but everybody within a mile of the court house heard the Knight of the Black Satchel.

Horace arrived on the morning train from the west, and as no reception committee met him, he was compelled to walk, alone and unnoticed, all the way to the court house. It may be that his unpardonable breach of courtesy was the factor which gave strength to his voice and bitterness to his tongue when he arose to sound the Moose call a couple of hours later. It cannot be that our local Progressive leaders wished to avoid him or feared that the odium of his name might attach to them, when only a few weeks ago one of our most prominent ministers of the gospel publicly wept upon his neck, clasped his hand and called him by the name of Brother!

At any rate, Horace was there with the spleen, which he vented principally upon Jim Watson and the Editor of the Herald. His speech consisted chiefly of a vociferous effort to convince the crowd that he, Horace, is for the people all the time and has always been an apostle of righteousness and purity, while the objects of his venom are seeking to destroy the government, the home, and the fireside. He did not elaborate on that well known epoch of his political career when, in 1906, while he was making the race for the Republican congressional nomination from this district, he sent to Winchester the money to buy every precinct committeeman in the county. It is presumed his native modesty forbade mention of his own brilliant personal achievements.

In the afternoon Edward C. Toner, editor of the Anderson Herald, and Bull Moose nominee for congress, addressed the crowd.

Mr. Toner repeated the statement, which has been made by every Progressive candidate in the field, that Roosevelt was nominated at Chicago, but, as usual, omitted to state the facts upon which his statement was presumably based. In other words, it was a case of "take it from me, boys."

At last the real orator of the day the true savior of the nation, the great Albert Jeremiah, arrived on the platform. He had been in town for nearly an hour, preparing to come forth but waiting for the impatience of the crowd to develop until his reception should be insured; waiting at the Randolph Hotel, carefully guarded by the watchful Horace, demanding his dinner, for which no arrangements had been made, after the dining room had closed. * * * Mr. Beveridge opened with an eloquent plea for the home and fireside, then launched into an attack upon the bi-partisan boss system which, to use his own language, "I found in the senate and I fought with all MY small strength." He then showed what this supposed Boss system does, by three illustrations; For the first he used the meat inspection bill, detailing how he fought for its passage in the senate, single handed, (for the argument see last week's Breeder's Gazette); for the second, he took up the tobacco tax and, as he closed this illustration, became too eloquent and nearly fell overboard, to the evident distress and concern of the august eyed (and chinned) Horace.

In the third and last cage, he exhibited the Payne-Aldrich tariff law, (which has ruined our farmers) and, showing how tariff legislation is passed in our national congress, made a plea for a tariff commission.

The candidate then discussed the first Lorimer investigation in the senate, declared that he was the only man who read the entire testimony in the case, assailed the invisible government, whatever that is, and made the remarkable declaration that Mr. Taft, in accepting the nomination at Chicago, was guilty of Treason against the government of the United States. Although Mr. Beveridge cited some cases wherein he insists frauds were committed, as in the Thirteenth District and in the Indianapolis elections, yet he carelessly failed to show any facts upon which even the most radical mooser could subscribe to his charge of treason. * * *

The Senator sought to show that because Rockefeller is for Taft and Thomas F. Ryan for Wilson, therefore each candidate is boss ridden and controlled by the money powers. He thoughtlessly omitted to state the corollary in which it must appear because George W. Perkins and Boss Bill Flynn is supporting Roosevelt, and therefore the only thing an honest man can do is to vote for Debbs. And in conclusion, Mr. Beveridge sounded the battle call of the Moose when he eulogized the modest Theodore as "the greatest man since Lincoln, raised by the Lord to lead the chosen people out of the wilderness."

The Senator did not discuss the initiative, referendum and recall, nor did he expound the doctrine of equal suffrage; hence for light on the former doctrine the voters of Randolph county must look elsewhere. But, from the frequency of his appeals to the women in the audience, of whom there were many, and his constant and passionate endeavors to save the home and fireside, we infer that the vine-clad suffrage and Mary of the wine-clad cottage are not completely forgotten.

MAKE NIGHT TRIP TO MONTICELLO

The Rev. J. B. Meacham and Don Cochran Confer With Dr. Biedewolf Concerning Tabernacle.

ARRANGEMENTS ARE MADE

Committee Meets Today and Agrees to Stand Good For Material so Work Can Begin.

Due to a midnight trip to Monticello last night by the Rev. John B. Meacham, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, and Don Cochran, it was possible to purchase the lumber this morning and have it moved to the mill lot so that work on the tabernacle for the evangelistic campaign, which will be started a week from tomorrow, can be started Monday. A number of men have volunteered to assist in the erection of the building.

Mr. Cochran, who is one of Dr. Biedewolf's helpers, and who will oversee the work of erecting the tabernacle, arrived yesterday only to learn that no financial arrangements had been made for the erection of the structure. He and the local ministers were confronted with a problem which had to be solved immediately so that the lumber could be bought today and work started Monday, because then only a week will remain in which to build it.

Dr. Biedewolf assured the Rushville ministers and laymen interested in the coming revival that there would be no necessity of raising a fund in advance to defray the expenses of building the tabernacle, and to pay other incidental expenses. For that reason the local people had not arranged for the purchase of lumber, but had expected the custodian to be prepared to go to work at once.

Mr. Cochran said that he had not been informed as to what course to pursue. He decided that the only course open was to make a hurry-up trip to Monticello, where Dr. Biedewolf is staying for a few days. He asked that a local representative would accompany him. The Rev. J. B. Meacham volunteered to go, and he and Mr. Cochran left last night at six o'clock, arriving at Monticello at nine-thirty o'clock. After a hurried consultation with Dr. Biedewolf, they left Monticello at two o'clock this morning and arrived back here at five-thirty o'clock.

Dr. Biedewolf said that he would stand behind the tabernacle committee if its members would order the material so that the work could proceed at once. He guaranteed to take the building off the hands of the committee at four hundred dollars.

When the Rev. Mr. Meacham and Mr. Cochran arrived here this morning a meeting of the tabernacle committee was hurriedly called. The members of the committee agreed to the plan of Dr. Biedewolf and the lumber was ordered so that work can be started Monday.

The Milroy, Carthage and Morris-town churches will co-operate with the local churches in the meeting. They have already engaged their evangelists who will work in unison with Dr. Biedewolf, and a successful evangelistic campaign is promised.

PAPERS BEING PREPARED

Looking Toward Organization of a Taft Club For Campaign.

Papers were being prepared today looking toward the organization of a Taft club in Rush county. It is expected that they will be circulated in a few days to get signers who will become members. Many have greeted the news of the organization of such a club with enthusiasm and it is very probable that the first organization of the campaign will start out with a formidable membership.

AMUSEMENTS

The Princess has the usual two pictures tonight. "The Prize Essay" is a feature Lubin drama. It tells a beautiful story and is acted in a very pleasing way. "The Troublesome Step Daughters" is a Vitagraph comedy, featuring John Bunny. Mr. Sumner will sing the Jew song hit, "Don't Do That Bear Cat Sadie!"

The difference between careful stage management and haphazard work is well illustrated in the case of "A Butterfly on the Wheel" which was produced in New York last season by Lewis Waller, the English actor-manager, under Shubert auspices. This is a drama by Edward G. Hemmerde, K. C., and Francis Neilson, M. P., which had a long run in London with Mr. Lewis Waller in the leading role. When Mr. Waller came to New York to appear in "The Garden of Allah" he brought with him the American rights for "A Butterfly on the Wheel" and early in the season brought out the piece at the Forty-ninth Street Theatre. Its success was immediate. Now that its long run in New York has come to a termination Mr. Waller is sending the company on tour and it will be seen at the Murat theatre the entire week of September 16th with matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

"A Butterfly on the Wheel" is a story of the wife of a member of British Parliament, who commits a slight indiscretion. This, however, is sufficient for the husband to sue for divorce and the big scene in the play shows the court room with the "butterfly" on the witness stand. The prosecution has gathered an abundance of evidence, much of which has been gained by hired detectives. It is the endeavor of the prosecuting attorney to handle the witness as roughly as possible and by means fair or unfair hold her up in the eyes of the court and the jury as a guilty woman.

As the case progresses it is evident that the sympathy of the audience is with the witness, yet the same feeling is not to be found on the stage for, although she makes frequent appeals to the mercy of the court she is told to answer questions and not offer criticism. In the end she breaks down under the fire of the fierce cross examination.

The play is told in four acts, the first two taking place in a room in a Paris hotel where the wife, owing to peculiar circumstances, finds herself alone with the man who is named as correspondent. The fourth act, which takes place in the home of the member of Parliament, brings about a happy reconciliation, and it should be said, a perfectly natural one, for the husband is not slow in recognizing the great injustice he has done his wife by suspecting her of guilt and subjecting her to the horrors of the trial.

SOCIETY NEWS

Chris Reiger of near St. Paul, and Miss M. Gaynell Lane of Milroy were united in marriage at eight o'clock Thursday evening by the Rev. H. H. Sheldon at the Centenary parsonage, says the Greensburg News. Both these young people are well known in this city, where the bride resided for some time. She is the daughter of Mrs. Belle Lane, and is a pretty and popular girl. Mr. Reiger is a well-to-do farmer, a hustling and enterprising young man, and already has a home furnished for his bride on a farm near St. Paul, where they will take up their residence immediately.

STEERING ROD BROKE.

While motoring west of Falmouth one day this week the steering rod broke on Simon Martin's auto and the machine swerved quickly to the side of the road. Mr. Martin was accompanied by his wife and Ed Lister and wife. Luckily they were climbing a hill at moderate speed as the rod broke, and had the accident happened 200 feet below the hill the machine would have struck a ten foot ditch with disastrous results. They were delayed on the scene for five hours until a steering rod was procured from Dr. Smullen.

(Copyright, 1912, A. C. McClurg & Co.)
Nor did the absence of a specified date for the second promised demonstration of power tend to relieve our uneasiness. In this silence we found the acme of cunning cruelty. Any day, at any hour, some other mystifying, soul-torturing incident was liable to occur.

I tried to argue that the seventh day was implied, inasmuch as the second note was received on the same day of the month as the first, and was a mere continuation of the original threat. But my contention lacked the intrinsic strength which carries conviction, and, as Cameron put it, we could only "watch and wait;" for the communications offered no alternative. They made no demand which being complied with would avert penalty. Only implacable and inevitable retribution, calm, patient, and determined, effused from every line.

But, in spite of Cameron's evident anxiety—and in using that term I am very mildly stating his obvious condition of mind—he sternly refused to consult either the police or the private detectives.

"You may not know," he explained, "that I am largely interested in a certain line of industrial enterprises, the shares of which are listed on the New York Stock Exchange. Should the public become aware that my life is threatened, very serious consequences might ensue in the market. No, Clyde, whatever is done, must be done by ourselves, and by friends whom we can trust absolutely. I can take no risk of this horrid thing getting into the newspapers. Besides," he added, with a kindly, considerate smile, "Evelyn must be kept in ignorance. Not for worlds would I have her troubled by our perplexing enigma."

My suggestion that he should go abroad for a time, or at least spend a few weeks at Newport, was met with similar obstinate refusal.

"I admit that I have been somewhat upset by this extraordinary combination," was the way he expressed it, "but I am not a coward. I am not going to run. Even if I were inclined to do so, what should I gain? If a man be not safe in his own house, where in Heaven's name is he likely to find safety?"

Quite naturally I was led by this expression to inquire whether, perchance, he mistrusted any of the many persons who were employed in the house and about the estate. But, somewhat to my surprise, he was almost gravely offended by the mere suggestion. Nevertheless there were several features of the affair, chief of them the manner in which the letters were received, which caused me to dwell with some mental persistence on this as the most profitable ground for speculation. And when at length, in the morning's small hours, I returned to my home and to my bed, I carried the thought with me.

The sowing of this seed in the subconscious garden of my mind brought forth fruit after its kind. I awoke with a perfectly clear understanding of how that which, the night before, had seemed so impossible of accomplishment was, perhaps, after all, merely a barlequin trick, quite simple when explained.

With the new day, too, and the sunlight, and the cheery brightness of my own rooms, there came a lifting of that oppressive atmosphere of the esoteric which at Cameron's had set my nerves out of plumb and my reason

With a Cleansing, Healing Antiseptic Cream, Stops Sneezing Instantly.

Many people suppose there is no cure for Hay Fever, and think, once one has had an attack, they must suffer every summer from haying time until frost comes. Some of the more fortunate seek relief in cooler climate, but thousands suffer at home, and often make their condition worse by using strong snuffs, powders and sprays.

There is no need of your being a victim of this disease any longer, and you don't have to run away to escape it either. Just get a fifty cent bottle of Ely's Cream Balm, place a little in the nostrils, draw the pleasant, aromatic fumes back into the head, and see how quickly you will get relief.

It opens up the air passages almost instantly, stops the sneezing, running at the nose and weeping. Furthermore, it doesn't simply give you temporary relief, but it heals and strengthens the sensitive membrane lining of the nose and throat, and restores it to normal, healthy condition, thus protecting you against a return of the trouble.

on the bias. Indeed I was fully convinced that we had been foolishly constructing an Alpine chain out of a miserable little row of mole hills, and I determined to lose no time in bringing Cameron, whom I now regarded as most needlessly alarmed, to my own wholesome way of thinking.

Directly after breakfast, therefore, I set forth on foot for my neighbor's, choosing the shore road as the more direct of the two routes.

Personally, my taste in landscape is for distant view in preference to near-at-hand foliage. My own house, which is fashioned in semblance of a Pompeian villa, its cream-white walls punctuated with shutters of a somewhat vivid pea-green and crowned by gently sloping roofs of the same bright color, gazes out across Stamford Harbor and the blue waters of the Sound, to where on clear days the pencilled outline of Eaton's Neck shows purple in the distance. There are no towering, umbrageous trees to interrupt the outlook; only low, carefully-trimmed shrubs, adorning a series of marble sculpture-dotted terraces, well below the line of vision. But the Cameron place, reflecting the Townsbury penchant for arboriculture, is quite the reverse. The prospect from the windows and verandahs of the fine old mansion is all green vistas and leafy perspectives, with only a glint of sun-sparkled waves, chance-caught between gray boles or when the wind spreads a momentary opening in the foliage.

My way to Cameron's led through a veritable forest of such luxuriant leafage that the path more than half the time was in twilight, while to right and left the shadows deepened into dark in the cloistered recesses of the woodland heart. The silence was profound. No voice of bird nor scurrying foot of squirrel invaded the morning hush of those ramous depths. My own footsteps on the soft turf returned no sound.

A half-mile or more I had walked in this mute greenwood peace, when sharp and clear there echoed through the verdurous aisles the crack of a rifle, and I came to a sudden, involuntary halt.

Then it occurred to me that it was the third day of the open season for rail birds, and that it was the report of a shot-gun I had heard, fired by some sportsman, off on the shore, there, to my right. And so I resumed my tramp, with ears keen for a repetition. Almost immediately I was rewarded, and then I knew that it was no rail bird gunner, for the shot was unmistakably a rifle shot, and it was fired in the depth of the wood, to the left of me.

Three times more I heard it, in fairly rapid succession, and sounding always from about the same direction. I cannot say that it gave me any uneasiness, but it perplexed me in a mild way, arousing a passing curiosity as to its object. And then, I came out upon the well-kept, gravelled drive which circles the close-cropped, velvety Cameron lawn, and catching sight of Cameron himself, in riding breeches and puttees, romping with one of his picturesquely graceful Russian wolf-hounds, promptly forgot all about it.

He came across the sward to meet me, the great, gaunt white hound pressing close to his side, and I thought I saw that he, too, had experienced the inspiring influence of the morning.

"I have found an answer," I cried, while he was still fifty yards away, "possibly the answer."

He raised his brows in question, and the hound, with open jaws, fondled his wrist.

"I had a horseback ride before breakfast," he told me, as he shook my hand. "Then I spent an hour at the kennels. We've a fine new brood of collie puppies. You must see them."

"I want to," I returned.

"What do you say to tennis?" he suggested, irrelevantly. "Just a set. It's a fine morning for tennis."

"If you can lend me a pair of shoes," I consented, glancing down at my boots. "A dozen pairs," he smiled. "Come up to my dressing room. Louis will fit you out."

I was scarcely prepared for this change in my friend's mood, and far from happy over it. He was evidently determined to ignore the subject that had so engrossed us the night before, hoping to find surcease of harassing thought in a restless round of activities. The condition was a morbid one which I believed should be discouraged; the more so as I possessed what I fancied was a perfectly practical solution of that which hitherto had seemed to us an inexplicable phenomenon. And I was a little annoyed, too, that my good tidings should be thus disregarded.

When, therefore, we had entered the hall and Cameron was leading towards the broad, ascending staircase, I paused.

"Do you mind giving me just a minute?"

He stopped, turned, and stood in questioning silence.

"A minute in your study," I added, in explanation.

Reluctantly, it seemed to me, he crossed to the study door, and throwing it open, stood aside that I might precede him.

The room appeared far less grim and gloomy than when I had last entered it. Its windows faced the south; and between the olive-green tapestry curtains the sun poured in a flood, lighting up the far corners, glinting on the gilt ornaments of the writing table, and bathing in dazzling splendor the burnished bronzes on the crowded top of the book-shelves.

"I see you are not disposed to resume our discussion of last night," I began, when Cameron, having closed the door behind him, halted just inside, and with hands in pockets, awaited my opening. "But I want to show you that we have been in very much the same position as the wondering children who watch the prestidigitateur. We have imagined something amazingly like a miracle, which, in point of fact, is capable of a very simple, commonplace explanation."

"You mean the cutting out of the head of the portrait?" he asked, with kindling interest.

"I do."

"You have discovered how it was done, before my eyes, so to speak, and yet—?"

"I have discovered how it may have been done," I interrupted.

He moved his head just perceptibly from side to side in skeptical gesture.

"The door of this room is seldom locked?" I queried, ignoring the indicated skepticism.

"Never locked," he answered.

"It would be quite possible for any one, knowing that you were absent, to spend an hour or so here uninterrupted?"

"Any one?" he questioned.

"Any one who had gained entrance to the house," I amplified.

"Oh, yes, I presume so."

"They would have ample time to clear a space on the book-shelves, climb up, and carefully cut out the head, or any part, or the whole of a portrait, if they were so inclined?"

I paused for his answer, but he only smiled with a sort of incredulous tolerance.

"Would they not?" I insisted. But Cameron was most perverse this morning.

"My dear Clyde," he scoffed, "of what use is all this? The portrait was cut, not while I was absent, but while I was present. I saw it complete at three o'clock; at twelve minutes past three, it was mutilated."

"My contention is," I explained, quite patiently, "that while you saw it complete at three o'clock, the cut had already been made, but the cut portion had not been removed. In other words, the cutting having been deftly done with a thin, sharp knife, it was perfectly feasible to leave the portrait apparently intact, though with the slightest effort the incised portion could subsequently be released—with, say, a piece of cord, glued to the back for that especial purpose."

Now that I had made myself clear, Cameron was quick to acknowledge the possibility of such a method.

"And the cord, you mean, led down behind the book-shelves, and perhaps through a window?" he suggested.

"Precisely. And was pulled by some

Money Back Catarrh Remedy

Dosing the stomach won't kill Catarrh germs. Neither will sprays, douches, snuffs or ointments.

The quickest way to kill germs is to breathe deep into the lungs the vaporized air of Booth's HYOMEI.

As this antiseptic air passes over the sore spots infested with Catarrh germs, it not only destroys them, but heals the inflamed membrane and stops the discharge of mucus.

Then hawking, spitting, snuffling, crusts in nose and foul breath will disappear, and vile, disgusting Catarrh will be conquered.

A complete HYOMEI outfit, which includes a hard rubber inhaler, only costs $1.00. Extra bottles, if afterwards needed, 50c; and F. B. Johnson is authorized to refund your money if dissatisfied.

one on the outside."

"Yes," he said, thoughtfully. "Such an explanation is not unreasonable. The thing, really, must have been done in some such way."

"And don't you see," I hurried on with my advantage, "how utterly cheap this makes the whole affair? There's nothing at all impressive in that performance when you find out how it was done. If the next demonstration is no better than such claptrap, you may rest assured you have a very peccanish sort of mountebank villain to deal with. So, cheer up, my dear man, and I'll show you a few tricks at tennis that may be equally eye-opening."

Unquestionably my friend appeared relieved. But I came to fancy later that the appearance was feigned for my benefit. Certainly he was not convinced, and in that proved himself possessed of an intuition, a world more accurate than my own.

SACRED CATTLE FOR BEEF

There are nearly 2,500 sacred cattle of India on the ranches near Pierce and Port Lavaca, Tex., and elsewhere throughout the state of Oklahoma. A strange looking creature, indeed, is the sacred cow. Its distinctive characteristic is a huge lump at its shoulders, an unusually prominent "dewlap" and large, drooping ears. While the original importation of the humped Zebu cattle has grown to a remarkable degree, nevertheless the most interest is attached to the crossing of the type with our domestic cattle. It has been found that the cross-breeds remain relatively free from ticks while other stock in the same pastures would be literally covered with these pests, which cause the dreaded "Texas fever," necessitating the frequent quarantining of the whole southwestern cattle district. The Brahman cross-bred cattle appear likewise to be less affected by other parasites and pestiferous insects, such as mosquitoes, hornflies, gadflies, etc., and to withstand better the warm, dry climate and other semi-tropical conditions present in the gulf section of the United States than do the native cattle. It is also claimed that they make a grade of beef superior to that of the native cattle. Englishmen in India long ago learned that the sacred cattle make excellent beef, the hump, which sometimes reaches a weight of 50 pounds, being especially prized.

About 30 years ago a number of the sacred cattle were introduced in Texas and crossed with native cattle, but as the original strain gradually deteriorated, the department of agriculture was requested by A. P. Borden to make a further importation of Indian cattle for the Pierce ranch with a view of restoring this strain of blood. The secretary granted him this permit, but on account of the very dangerous live stock diseases prevailing in India the department required the strictest possible precautions to prevent the introduction of any of these contagions. Not only were the animals purchased inspected by a representative of the department in India, but also on their arrival here. It was during one of these examinations in quarantine that it was discovered that three of the zebus were infected with surra. These were promptly killed and burned. Subsequent examinations showed others to be infected with the disease—probably carried by flies and mosquitoes—and these were promptly killed. On November 14, 1906, the secretary of agriculture released the animals—33 in number—from quarantine, as the last seven series of test were successively negative and as killing frosts had already occurred, resulting in the disappearance of all flies and mosquitoes.

While the majority of sacred cattle on exhibition in circuses and zoological gardens are of the smaller breeds, weighing about two hundred and fifty pounds and standing not higher than three feet, the types of Indian cattle selected for this importation were of the larger breeds, standing as high as six feet and weighing up to 1,860 pounds.

ABRAHAM'S OAK, PALESTINE

Many pilgrims to that part of Palestine connected with the history of Abraham visit the tree here pictured. It is known as Abraham's oak and is evidently so ancient that the natives find no difficulty in believing the legend that the patriarch sat under the shade of its boughs.

BIGGEST BABY IN WORLD

James Adolph Cody, of Mount Tiry, Ga., is believed to be the biggest baby in the world. At birth he was just an ordinarily big baby, but when about two months old he began growing in size and flesh and kept steadily at it until now, at the age of three years, he is classed among the wonderful babies in the world. If he keeps on growing until he attains manhood he will be a giant. He weighs 115 pounds and measures 44 inches in height, with arms extending he measures 43 inches from the tips of fingers across the shoulders. Other measurements are: Bust, 38 inches; waist, 29 inches; hips, 45 inches; thigh, 25 inches; length of foot, 7 1/2 inches; strength is well in keeping with his size and his appetite is more like that of a big healthy farmer than a three-year-old child. He rides horseback and is fond of the automobile.

NOTHING LIVES IN DEAD SEA

The Dead Sea in Syria is so called because nothing can live in its waters. Owing to its density fish could not sink in it, and some of its salts are powerful antiseptics, fatal to any form of life. The salt of the ocean is nearly all common table salt.

WILL REOPEN THE HAWTHORNE CASE

Mine Promotion Scandal to Get Fresh Airing.

New York, Sept. 14.—The investigation into the affairs of the Hawthorne Silver and Iron Mines company that resulted in the indictment of Julian Hawthorne, Albert Freeman, a mining promoter, and Josiah Quincy, a Boston lawyer, has been reopened. According to Assistant United States District Attorney Dorr, other men than those already indicted will be involved in the new inquiry. The federal grand jury appeared before Judge Hough in the criminal branch of the United States district court and presented Herbert C. Smyth and Miss Helen E. Rodgers for contempt.

Smyth, who is a member of the law firm of Wellman, Gough & Smyth, had refused to surrender for evidence before the grand jury certain books and papers belonging to the Hawthorne company. He had likewise refused to answer questions concerning the affairs of the mining concern. Judge Hough ruled that the books and papers be delivered forthwith and that Smyth must answer the questions put to him.

Miss Rodgers, who was a stenographer in Freeman's office, got off easier. It was charged that she was guilty of contempt in that she had repeated to Freeman certain things that had transpired in the grand jury room. Miss Rodgers was awed by the court procedure. She pleaded that she was ignorant of the fact that she had transgressed in telling Freeman what was said by those who testified before the grand jury. Judge Hough, in dismissing her, administered a gentle reprimand.

AMUSEMENTS

Few burlesque organizations enroute can boast of the popularity enjoyed by Morris Wainstock's "Jardin DeParis Girls" company, which will be the attraction all next week at the Empire theater, Indianapolis. The style of the entertainment presented by this company is somewhat different from the average burlesque performance. A two act burlesque entitled "At the Beach" serves as a vehicle for the company of which Leo Stevens is the principal comedian, while others in his support are Joe Madden, Tom Nolan, Stella Gilmore, Lydia Jospy, known as the "little nightingale" and Helen Marvelle. Thirty pretty girls comprise the chorus, and the song numbers are of the catchy sort. An exceptionally strong vaudiville program is also introduced headed by the Tierney Four and including Rosalie Rose, character comedienne, and "Living Art Studies" the sensation of the musical halls of Paris.

MAY SET ASIDE OHIO'S ELECTION

Action On New Constitution Has Created Turmoil.

BUSINESS MEN ARE AROUSED

Radical Character of Some of the Amendments Adopted at Recent Constitutional Election Has Stirred Commercial Interests, and It Is Said Grounds Have Been Discovered For Questioning the People's Decision.

Columbus, O., Sept. 14.—A suit to have the result set aside is contemplated by business interests which strongly opposed the adoption of radical amendments to the Ohio constitution.

During the campaign it was forecasted that such action would be brought, but little attention was paid to the reports because of the flimsy technicalities cited as grounds therefor. However, it appears that lawyers have informed business men there may be good grounds for questioning the people's action, since the constitutional provision relating to new amendments refers to "a majority of the vote cast thereon."

The highest total vote on any amendment was 537,000. The majority for several amendments considered to have carried is not a majority of the figure mentioned. A further point to be made is that the constitutional convention had no legal right to order a special election, as this was purely a legislative function.

WITHDREW THEM

Pennsylvania Progressives Take Roosevelt Electors Off Taft Ticket.

Philadelphia, Sept. 14.—An agreement was reached at a joint conference of Republican and Washington party leaders by which the Roosevelt electors will be withdrawn at once from the Republican ticket and there will be substituted real Republicans who will support the candidacy of President Taft. This action, participated in by representatives of all factions concerned in the settlement of the electoral question, ends the turmoil over the electoral ticket in Pennsylvania. Chairman Wasson of the Republican state committee arranged the conference. Only the electoral situation was considered.

ACTUAL SERVICE

This Now Is the Test of Eligibility to G. A. R. Membership.

Los Angeles, Sept. 14.—That only men who saw actual service in the civil war are eligible to membership in the Grand Army of the Republic, was decided definitely by delegates to the national encampment of the G. A. R., by a majority of four-fifths of the delegates present.

The question of the next meeting place was not decided, but the 1913 gathering is likely to take place at Gettysburg, Pa.

The convention also voted against a proposal from the national officers that the dues be raised.

INDIAN UPRISING

Brisk Battle Reported From the City of Oaxaca.

Mexico City, Sept. 14.—Rebellious Indians attacked the city of Oaxaca, cutting off the water supply. The garrison immediately sallied forth with artillery. The fight is progressing in all the suburbs. A serious uprising is feared in the states of Nuevo Leon and Coahuila. The conspirators plan to begin by taking Saltillo and Naderos and the town of San Pedro. Troops are rushing to the scene.

FRESH REVOLUTION

New Trouble in Santo Domingo May Lead to Intervention.

Washington, Sept. 14.—The United States is about to intervene in Santo Domingo for the protection of foreign lives and property.

A fresh revolution believed to be in part a renewal of the recent one thought to have been squelched, is threatening American and other interests.

Governor Wilson will address the National Conservation congress at Indianapolis on Oct. 3.

Doll Servants of Corpse

So rapidly is the far east being westernized that there can be no doubt that in very few years to come such Oriental ceremonies as that here illustrated will be merely things of memory. The photograph was taken on the occasion of the recent burial of Princess Tsien, sister of one of the most important members of the Chinese imperial family. The funeral procession passing through the Tartar City, Peking, was an extraordinary sight. The body, in a heavy coffin, under a silken canopy, was borne by twenty-four coolies, and accompanied by money-throwers, whose duty it was to distribute "cash" that the dead princess' passage to the other world might be fittingly paid. Also in the procession were the "servants" shown in the photograph, large dolls of paper and bamboo, holding the tea bowl, tea pot, and pipe of their mistress. These were burnt at the cemetery during the final ceremony.

LONDON'S WONDERFUL BEAST

Residents of London and visitors to that city are wondering just how to classify the two quaint beasts in stone that have been placed outside the entrance to the new King Edward VII. gallery at the British museum. They seem to be a cross between the British lion and the Sphinx and are admittedly not an artistic success.

NO GRASS ON HIS GRAVE

A strange story comes from Watauga county, North Carolina, just across the Blue Ridge from east Tennessee. It is told by the editor of a weekly newspaper, who says that while attending a burial in a cemetery recently his attention was called to a grave entirely bare of grass and apparently as hard packed on the surface as the dirt in a public highway. He was told this grave contained the dust of a man named Hatton, who died forty or more years ago. "Although all these years have elapsed," said the editor, "not a sprig of grass or a flower of any kind has grown upon the grave." He inquired the cause and the mountain folk explained that the man buried there was extremely profane and died with curses on his lips.

KING OF THE LOBSTERS

The largest lobster sent to Fulton market, New York city, in many years was received in the fish stall of John Dias. Weighing 31 pounds and measuring 24 inches in all, with claws 13 inches in length, this titan crustacean—one of a family of three—was, indeed, a sight worth seeing. His mate, weighing 20 pounds and measuring 18 inches, carried off second honors, while the offspring weighed 11 pounds and was 15 inches in length.

PIG COMMITS SUICIDE

Among the suicides chronicled in the papers as being due to the heat is that of a pig. It was found head downward in a brook on the state farm at Windsor, Conn.

Memorial to Cecil Rhodes

Rarely has there been a more appropriate memorial than that erected in honor of Cecil Rhodes on his favorite spot on the slopes of Table mountain. The temple carries out a dream of Rhodes' own, and in its massive simplicity emphasizes his ideal of power, as Watts' statue of "Physical Energy," erected at the bottom of the steps, symbolizes great deeds done and great deeds still to be achieved. The eight lions are the work of the late J. M. Swan, R. A. The temple is of the granite of Table mountain, and there is a bust of Rhodes inside the structure. The illustration shows the dedication of the memorial by Lord Grey.

STAGE ALL SET FOR BIG GAME

Everything Ready For Second Contest of Series With Maxwell Team of Newcastle.

HARRY GEISEL WILL UMPIRE

Central League Official Will be on the Job—Record Breaker Crowd Expected.

The stage is all set for the ball game tomorrow between the locals and the strong Maxwell team of Newcastle. The fans are anxiously awaiting the call to "play ball." This, the second game of the series, promises to be a battle from start to finish and whichever team wins will know they have been in a ball game.

At the suggestion of Manager Williams of the Newcastle team, Manager Maibaugh has secured Harry Geisel of Indianapolis to umpire the contest. Geisel is an official in the Central League, which recently finished the season, and is a capital umpire. The reason for securing Geisel is that he is an outsider and both teams will get a square deal. Manager Maibaugh is anxious to beat Newcastle fair and square and thus conceded to Williams' request.

The special train from Newcastle, bringing the team and 400 rooters will arrive here over the L. E. &amp; W. about 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The fans there are looking forward to a brilliant game and are worked up as much as the local fans. The Newcastle special will return at six o'clock.

As the base ball season is nearing a close, not many more games will be played here. For this reason, if nothing more a record crowd will be on hand. The game will be called at 3 o'clock.

LOCAL TRAINERS NOT SO WELL UP

Rushville Horseman Fail to Get in Money on Getaway Day at Race Meets.

MORRISTOWN HORSE WINS

Local trainers did not do so well yesterday as they have been doing this week. Harrie Jones failed to get in the money at Fort Wayne although he had two horses entered at Fort Wayne. Clell Maple did not start at Terre Haute, according to the summaries.

Curt Gosnell won fourth money in the 2:16 trot at Fairmount, West Va., yesterday with Dr. Athol best time being 2:16¼. Posey Patchen, owned by L. R. Cole of Morristown, won the 2:20 pace for three-year-olds at the Goshen fair yesterday, she going the best heat in 2:25¼.

Harrie Jones finished fifth with Lily Patchen, a daughter of the Patchen. Boy, in the 2:12 pace at Fort Wayne, and took the same position in the summaries with Constantine in the 2:22 trot. Thursday Mr. Jones finished third in the 2:24 trot with Azim.

Ruth Randal, John Dagler's trotting mare, won the unfinished 2:18 trot at Fort Wayne Thursday. They raced four heats Wednesday, Ruth Randal and Capitola taking two each.

JONES HAS GOOD WEEK.

Western Horseman: Harrie Jones of Rushville, Ind., had a very successful week at State fair races. Out of eight starts he was but twice out of the money, was twice second, twice third, once fourth, and won with College Jim, giving him a record of 2:06¼, which was the fastest heat of the week. In the 2:12 pace, he won the first heat with Mabel B., by Sir Charles, giving her a record of 2:07, and was a contender in the remaining heats.

LIFE DEVOTED TO MINISTRY ENDS

bury University at Greencastle, now DePauw University. As a pleasant commentary on his useful life, it should be noted that every one of his eight children attended and were graduated from DePauw University. Thus did he prove his allegiance to his alma mater. His two youngest children, twin boys, Earl and Ernest, were graduated only last June, carrying off the honors of the class.

After leaving Asbury University, the Rev. Mr. Marlatt devoted the next three years of his life to teaching school. He gave up the life of the pedagogue to take up the ministry and gave his life's blood to his work for thirty-nine years. He has preached in many Indiana cities, and has a host of former parishioners, who will be deeply grieved to hear of his death.

The Rev. Mr. Marlatt took as his wife November 5, 1868, Miss Anna Collins of Scott county, Indiana. To the union eight children were born, all of whom survive. The widow also is left to mourn his loss.

The surviving children are: Miss Mary C. Marlatt of Connersville; Mrs. J.H. Scholl of this city; Walter Marlatt, editor of the Evening News, published in Kenasha, Wisconsin; Miss Anna C. Marlatt, formerly instructor of Latin in the Rushville high school and now a member of the faculty of the Connersville high school; Mrs. Fred Miller of Connersville; Mrs. Paul Peter Willis of Indianapolis; Earl Marlatt, principal of the Raleigh school in this county, and Ernest Marlatt, who is residing in Connersville for the present. A sister, Mrs. Ellen Walker of Newcastle, also survives.

The body will be laid to rest in the Doddridge Chapel cemetery, east of Milton, in Wayne county, near the scene of his childhood days. The funeral will be held Monday morning at the First M. E. church in Connersville. The sermon will be preached by the Rev. V. W. Tevis of this city, assisted by several other ministers.

THIS CHILD HAS 8 GRANDPARENTS

Few Babies Can Enter the World and Boast of Such a Line of Ancestors.

THERE ARE FOUR GENERATIONS

Friday morning when an eight and one-half pound daughter arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Huffman it was discovered that the new baby had eight living grandparents, a fact that but few babes could boast of in this country; and another remarkable thing worthy of note is that on the mother's side the four grandparents or four generation of women are also the oldest living in their respective families, says the Lewisville Road Traveler.

The eight grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Enos Huffman, parents of the baby's father; Solomon Stewart and wife of Shelby county, parents of Roy's mother; Harry Schwartz and wife, Mrs. Huffman's parents, and T. B. VanDyke and wife, parents of Mrs. Schwartz.

Although it is no uncommon thing to see four generations represented, it is doubtful if another case could be referred to in this vicinity where a babe has eight living grandparents, but such is the case in Lewisville.

LIFE DEVOTED TO MINISTRY ENDS

The Rev. A. N. Marlatt, 39 Years a
Preacher in M. E. Church, Expires at Connersville Home.

UNCONSCIOUS FOR 13 HOURS

Twice Pastor For Local Church From
1869 to 1871, and From
1876 to 1879.

After a life of active service for the cause of Christianity, thirty-nine years of which he devoted unstintingly to preaching in various Methodist Episcopal churches in Indiana, the Rev. A. N. Marlatt, age seventy-seven years, twice the pastor of the Methodist church in this city, died this morning at his home in Connersville after a prolonged illness. The deceased was the father of Mrs. J. H. Scholl, corner of Jackson and Seventh streets.

Many Rushville people remember well when the Rev. Mr. Marlatt was pastor of the St. Paul M. E. church of Rushville. He assumed the local pastorate first in June, 1869, when in the prime of life, to fill out an unexpired term, and remained until September, 1871. He was sent back here by the conference in September, 1876, five years later, and remained for three years until he was assigned to another church by the conference in September, 1879.

The Rev. Mr. Marlatt retired from the active ministry nine years ago because of declining health. For a man of his age he was in very good health, but was not able to carry on the active and strenuous duties of a pastor. He resided in Connersville, where he was held in high esteem, during the nine years after he was superannuated.

About a year ago the venerable old Christian man was stricken with what the physicians believed to be paralysis, but which later developed to be asphasia. At the time his health was broken it was feared that he would not survive, and grave fears were held out lest he would not recover. But his rugged constitution was able to withstand the test and the end was held off for a year although his relatives and close friends knew that death was inevitable in the course of a year or so.

The peculiar course the disease took caused the Rev. Mr. Marlatt to lose the power of speech. This was the reason for the doctors first diagnosing his ailment as paralysis. Although he recovered sufficiently so that he was able to walk about, he could not talk as he did of yore. This irreparable loss was due to a blood clot in the organ of speech. He regained his speech, however, some time ago.

Fistula was the direct cause of his demise. This disease had been wasting his body away for several months and in his weakened condition he was unable to offset its onslaughts. His death occurred at five o'clock this morning. He lost consciousness yesterday afternoon at four o'clock, up to which time he recognized all the members of his family gathered about his bedside.

The Rev. Mr. Marlatt was born June 27, 1835, in an obscure country place in Wayne county, north of Milton, just over the Wayne-Fayette county line. He was the son of Thomas and Elizabeth Marlatt, who moved to Indiana to seek their fortune and settled in Wayne county some time before the birth of their son.

Mr. Marlatt got the best education the country schools of that day afforded. He yearned for a better education, and became a student in As-

WATSON IN WABASH COUNTY

Former Congressman Opens the Campaign at North Manchester.

James E. Watson of this city opened the Republican campaign in Wabash county at North Manchester on Thursday night, when he delivered an address at a theater, which was insufficient to accommodate the crowd. One hundred and twenty-five Republicans from Wabash, the county seat, motored to North Manchester to hear the address. Mr. Watson was introduced by Fred I. King of Wabash, the Republican candidate for secretary of State.

PREPARING TO ATTEND PICNIC

Local Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias, Anticipating Big Time
at Broad Ripple Park.

GUESTS OF FIRST REGIMENT

Local members of the K. of P. lodge are making preparations to attend the U. R. K. of P. First Regiment field day and basket picnic to be held at Broad Ripple park in Indianapolis on Sunday, September 22. The picnic will be the greatest lodge event of the year in the State. Hundreds of knights and their families from all parts of the State will be present for the day and arrangements are being made for a royal entertainment. Although the picnic is in charge of the Uniform Rank it is for all members of the Pythian order.

A feature of the day will be the grand review of the different companies of the State. General Gray, commander of the Indiana brigade, and his staff will review the companies. Col. C. A. Phelps of Newcastle, commander of the third regiment to which this company belongs, has been made inspector.

Col. Samuel Trabue of this city, on the staff of Maj.-Gen. A. J. Stobart, commander of the U. R. K. of P. of the United States, will be present. At least thirty members of the local company will attend, it is expected.

MAY BRING ANNUAL CONFERENCE HERE

Local Ministers Will Ask Jefferson-
ville Meeting For Next Session
of M. E. Preachers.

REV. WYLIE WILL BE RETURNED

The Indiana conference of the Methodist Episcopal church will convene next Tuesday evening at Jeffersonville. The Rev. V. W. Tevis and the Rev. W. H. Wylie will be in attendance from this city.

The conference is attended by about 300 ministers and the sessions are held annually. Rushville will ask for the next conference and so far as is known will not be opposed by any other city. The annual conference means much to any city where it is held, and an extra effort will be made to bring it here.

It is practically assured that the Rev. W. H. Wylie will be returned to the St. Paul M. E. church here.

WOULD NOT LET HIM WITHDRAW IT

Bull Moose District Committee Refuses to Let Greenstreet Take
Resignation Back.

THE NOMINEE IS KICKED OUT

Another Convention Will be Held in
Connersville Sept. 23 to Name
Successor.

The news filtered through on the wires this afternoon from Connersville where a meeting of the Bull Moose Sixth district committee, presided over by Rudolph Leeds, the Richmond millionaire publisher, was held, that Joseph A. Greenstreet of Henry county lately nominated at Richmond at the Bull Moose convention as their candidate for congress, was not allowed to withdraw his resignation that he wrote in haste a few days ago when charges were pressed against him by E. F. Warfel, editor of the Richmond Item, B. Dudley Foulke's newspaper, with avowed intention of causing him to resign.

The meeting of the district committee was held in Connersville this afternoon to consider the case. Although the nominee whose sculp Warfel sought was not in attendance he was represented and prepared to defend the onslaughts made on his business integrity by the representative of the man, B. Dudley Foulke, whom he defeated for the nomination.

When he was first assailed, Greenstreet was angered and promptly wrote out his resignation and handed it to the district chairman. Later his friends importuned him to fight the charges, and it is said that he was willing to withdraw the resignation. But the committee this afternoon would not have it that way.

The resignation was accepted and Monday, September 23, was set as the date for a second district convention to select Greenstreet's successor. The convention will be held in Connersville. The Newcastle Courier of yesterday adds the following concerning the rupture in the Bull Moose party in the district:

W. R. Wilson, the Bull Moose chairman in Henry county, Friday was notified by District Chairman Rudolph G. Leeds of Richmond, that the district committee would meet Saturday in Connersville to take up the charges made against Joseph A. Greenstreet of Henry county, the Bull Moose nominee for congress, says the Newcastle Courier. The entire committee is expected to be present and the matter will be thoroughly investigated.

Mr. Wilson will attend the meeting and will be accompanied by Mr. Greenstreet and his attorney, Wright R. Steele. They will take with them the books, agreements and receipts used in the closing up of the affairs of the Richmond Handle Co., out of which the charges developed, and it is stated that they will easily refute the unjust accusations.

It is not known what part Ed F. Warfel, editor of William Dudley Foulke's Richmond Item, will take in the procedure. He pressed the charges against Greenstreet and insisted on an investigation.

The Greenstreet-Warfel affair has created a big sensation throughout the district and is being discussed in all political circles. The matter was given publicity in the State papers Friday and was featured in their political columns.

The charges are not given credit in Newcastle, where Mr. Greenstreet is well and favorably known. Here the people have implicit faith in the accused man's honesty and integrity, even if he has "got off" in his politics.

DESERTED WIFE IN A SAD PLIGHT

Willard Bennett, Painter, Leaves City
This Afternoon With Avowed Intention of Never to Return.

TAUNTS SPOUSE WITH "ROLL"

Dejected Woman Thinks Not of Her-
self But of Two Boys Left
From Family of Eight.

Dejected, and with broken spirit, Mrs. Willard Bennett, 523 West First street, this afternoon told between sobs how her drunken husband, for whom she had given birth to eight children, came home this afternoon after spending the week in New Salem and left his family penniless and without means of support, packed his suit case, and with an oath, declared that he was leaving Rushville never to return.

"I do not care if I ever see his face on earth again," said Mrs. Bennett bitterly, "now that he has deserted me, but I do believe that he should support his two young boys he left here for me to care for."

Mrs. Bennett said her husband left home hurriedly last Monday morning without leaving her a cent to buy food for a week. She said he had worked on the New Salem school building all week, and returned home this afternoon, only to leave again for good.

"He pulled a wad of bills larger than I could grasp in my hand," Mrs. Bennett related, "and then taunted me by asking if I wanted any of that and if I thought I could use any of it. He swore at me and tore around the house, cursing at every breath."

A pitiful tale Mrs. Bennett recited to a newspaper reporter whom she called to tell of her husband's actions. Her life has been one of hardship and toil. According to her version, life has not held out much of the bright and happy side. She has spent the greater part of it toiling over a washtub to earn a meager fifty cents to buy victuals to keep body and soul together.

Nothing is left but a broken hulk of a once beautiful woman. Willard Bennett wooed and won her hand, she cried this afternoon, as she rubbed the tears from her eyes with the corner of her big blue apron, and she loved him truly. He promised to protect and support her, but he did neither after a few years of married life, she declared.

"He has been a drinking man all his life," Mrs. Bennett said "and I have stuck to him through thick and thin, at first never whimpering or complaining. I have washed and supported my children, and have toiled day and night for their good, and little has he contributed toward their life."

"I stood him as long as I could. Now that he has actually deserted me, I do not want to see him again. The only thing I hope is that I can get some recourse through the law."

Mrs. Bennett's life has been one of devotion to her children. Although bent of frame and with withered face, she still thinks of them first, never considering her own sad plight at all. Seven boys and a girl compose her family and only three of them are left at home, two of them so small that they can not help to make a living.

Mrs. Bennett bemoaned the fate of her two smallest boys. One of them is in school, but she doubted if he could stay much longer because his clothes would not last long. The other boy, the mother said, had not been started to school yet because he did not have fit clothes to wear.

Mrs. Bennett asked if she could bring any action against her husband, and it was suggested that she might file an affidavit against him for wife desertion. She said she would see the proper officials at once.

COURT WAS QUIET TODAY

Elizabeth Gallimore Was Given Judgment For $200.

Not much business was transacted today in the circuit court and Judge Blair returned to his home in Shelbyville shortly before noon. Elizabeth Gallimore was given judgment for $200 against William Downard on an account. The case was heard during the April term.

One new suit was filed today. Brown Brothers filed an account suit against Lee Smiley demanding $150. Kiplinger and Williams represent the plaintiff company.

FORMER WEALTHY FARMER A SUICIDE

Leroy Hawkins, Once Residing Near
Glenwood, Whose Son Lives Here
Dies by Own Hand.

WAS LIVING IN CINCINNATI

Leroy Hawkins, formerly a well-to-do farmer and stock buyer living on the Rush-Fayette county line between Glenwood and Falmouth, committed suicide in Cincinnati, where he has been living for some time, either late last night or early this morning, according to a dispatch received today in Connersville, where Hawkins has relatives and once lived. Hawkins was at one time wealthy, it is said, and after the death of his wife, a daughter of Mrs. Jack Smith of 532 North Jackson street, he started in to dissipate his fortune. Hawkins' son, Deloris Hawkins Smith, who has been reared by his grandmother and aunt Miss Emma Smith received news of his father's death this morning, but it is said that the intelligence that his father killed himself was not conveyed to him. Deloris left at once for Connersville, where Hawkins' body will be taken from Cincinnati. Mrs. Hawkins died when her son was an infant. Mrs. Henry Melhorn of Indianapolis is a sister of the suicide. No details of the suicide could be learned late today.

Mr. Hawkins visited his son here a few weeks ago.

MAY NOMINATE STEVENS

Judicial Convention Still in Session
at Late Hour.

Word from Shelbyville late this afternoon was in effect that the Sixteenth judicial convention had not yet named a nominee for prosecutor. James Bingham, one time attorney general occupied most of the convention's time with a speech and had not finished at a late hour. So far as is known, Albert Stevens of this city, is the only candidate out for the nomination. It is more than likely that Mr. Stevens will receive the nomination.

Ground is being broken at Winfield, L. L. for a school for women, where plumbing, building, masonry and other trades will be taught. The school will have room for 150 pupils and over sixty applications have already been received.

IS DEAD MAN A RICH RECLUSE?

Individual Who Expired Suddenly at
Knightstown Believed to be John
Montgomery of Kokomo.

SAID TO HAVE HAD PROPERTY

Harry Pea of This City Says the
Description Answers That of Montgomery.

Was the man, whose dead body lies unclaimed at Knightstown, John Montgomery of Kokomo, reputed to own real estate there and to be worth between five and six thousand dollars?

Harry Pea of this city believes that the man who dropped dead in a Knightstown hotel last Sunday was John Montgomery, and further proof of the theory is found in the fact that Dr. F. J. Drake of Knightstown, who has taken it upon himself to learn the identity of the dead man and locate his heirs, has written to the Kokomo police that the man, whoever he is, said just before his death that he owned real estate in Kokomo and Bartholomew county.

When Harry Pea read of the man's death, and his description, he at once surmised that he was none other than John Montgomery of Kokomo. He said that the description answered Montgomery exactly. All of the other circumstances fit it perfectly, too, because Montgomery was a wanderer, and remained at home little. Mr. Pea was well acquainted with Montgomery and says that the description answers in every detail to the appearance of Montgomery the last time he saw him.

Harry Pea communicated with the police Wednesday, after he had read of the body of a man believed to be John Monroe or John Monroe Walker, had been unidentified at Knightstown. He told Police Chief McAllister that he believed the dead man was John Montgomery of Kokomo, and an effort was made that afternoon to find an automobile to take them to Knightstown so that Mr. Pea could see the body. No machine could be obtained just at that time, and the idea was given up.

The Greensburg News sized up the dead man as John Monroe, well known in the northern part of Decatur county and the southern part of Rush county. Monroe, according to the Greensburg News, spent his winters in the old tile works near Williamstown, and last spring left for Knightstown, where he said he intended to follow the tinner's trade. The following from the Kokomo Tribune has to do with the information received there:

Chief of Police Windoffer has received a letter from Dr. F. J. Drake of Knightstown asking information about a man named John Monroe or John Monroe Walker or John Montgomery. A traveling tinner who was known by the foregoing name, died at Knightstown September 7, 1912, and the body is waiting for word from friends or relatives.

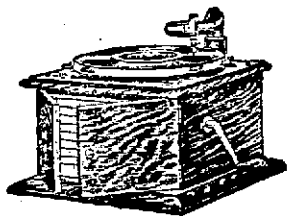

The man was between 75 and 80 years of age and had a full beard, which was not very gray.

On his death bed he was asked a few questions but he was too far gone to answer many. He divulged the information that he owned real estate in this city and also land in Bartholomew county. The abstracters' records show no such property owner recorded.

From a height of three thousand feet a man in an aeroplane can see a submarine gliding eighteen feet below water.

GOOD HIGHWAYS ARE ECONOMICAL
Means Big Saving in Crops Because Loss is Sustained in Hauling to Market.
450,000 AUTOS IN COUNTRY
Improved Roadways Will Also be Helpful to This Class of Travelers.
That not less than $250,000,000 would be saved to the country in the cost of hauling the present record breaking crop if 20 per cent. of the public highways of the country were improved, is the assertion of J. E. Pennybacker, Jr., executive secretary of the American road congress, which is to be held in Atlantic City September 30 to October 5. Mr. Pennybacker, before becoming the secretary of the American Association for Highway Improvement, which, with the American Automobile Association and the National Association of Machinery and Material Manufacturers, is holding a convention at Atlantic City, was the chief of the road management department in the United States office of public roads, has made a comparative study of the cost of hauling crops over good and bad roads.
Because of his knowledge of the actual needs of the country, Mr. Pennybacker was selected as the executive secretary of the American road congress, which is to crystallize the road movement in America. In an interview Mr. Pennybacker says that he believes that the American road congress will so influence public sentiment that it will be merely a matter of a few years before 20 per cent. of the public highways of the United States will have been improved. At the present time little over 8 per cent. of the public highways are of the improved type.
"The government's prediction that the crop now being harvested will exceed any previous year's yield," said Mr. Pennybacker, "should serve to call attention to the great losses that are being sustained by farmers and consumers in the hauling of crops. It is estimated that the improvement of the main roads of this country, approximately 20 per cent., would result in an annual saving of at least $250,000,000 in the cost of hauling alone, which would be sufficient to improve fifty thousand miles of road at a further cost of $5,000 a mile. In five years this would improve 250,000 miles, which would be sufficient to bring the total mileage of improved roads up to 20 per cent."
"There are more than twenty-five million farm horses and mules in the United States, valued at $2,700,000,000; about one million five hundred thousand horse-drawn vehicles, valued at $83,000,000, and more than four hundred and fifty thousand automobiles, valued at about $500,000,000. A depreciation of 5 per cent., caused by the wear and tear of bad roads would amount to $164,000,000 annually, which, at $5,000 a mile, would be sufficient to build 32,800 miles of improved roads.
"These are but a few great economic facts which will be brought to the attention of the American people at the American road congress, to be held in Atlantic City on September 30 to October 5. Once the people realize the great waste involved in bad roads there will be little delay in the improvement of the main arteries of commerce throughout the country. The whole subject is so big that we have made arrangements to treat it in sections at the congress, each section, such as legislative, administrative, finance and education, having been placed under the auspices of the representative organizations in those particular fields."

T. L. Parks, Murrayville, Ga., Route 1, is in his 73d year, and was recently cured of a bad kidney and bladder trouble. He says himself: "I have suffered with my kidneys. My back ached and I was annoyed with bladder irregularities. I can truthfully say, one 50c. bottle of Foley Kidney Pills cured me entirely." They contain no habit forming drugs. F. B. Johnson & Co.

White Wife of Black Champion Who Ended Life With a Pistol.

Chicago, Sept. 14.—It now transpires that Mrs. Jack Johnson, who killed herself with a pistol shot, long had bitterly regretted her marriage to the negro. On the recent trip to Las Vegas, where Johnson fought Jim Flynn, Mrs. Johnson is said to have told friends that everyone shunned her because she had married a negro and that she was unhappy. She said to a negro woman caller: "I am a white woman and am tired of being a social outcast. I deserve all of my misery for marrying a black man. Even the negroes don't respect me; they hate me. I intend to end it all."

WALDO DECLARES HE IS NOT RESPONSIBLE
Police Force Named By a Civil Service Committee.
New York, Sept. 14.—Following his chief, Mayor Gaynor, on the witness stand at the aldermanic committee's investigation of the police department, Police Commissioner Waldo put the responsibility for the character of the men in his department squarely up to the municipal civil service committee. He said that investigation of applicants for appointment as policemen, which formerly was made by a special bureau of the department after the civil service commission had certified a list, had been abandoned by his orders and at the mayor's direction because, as he believed, two investigations meant a duplication of work and because a new bureau was established in the civil service commission for the purpose. The records of certain applicants in the possession of the police department, showing that these would-be policemen had been arrested for this, that and the other thing, Mr. Waldo said, he had turned over to the civil service commission, and, when the same names were returned to him he appointed the men to the department on the assumption that the commission had made a proper investigation of them.
Commissioner Waldo refused to waive immunity before testifying.

NO CHANCE FOR VOTE THIS YEAR
"Lawyers' Amendment" Has Had Its Ineffectual Day.
WILL NOT BE ON THE BALLOT
Attorney General Honan Holds That Proposed Constitutional Amendment Giving the Legislature the Right to Prescribe Qualifications For Admission to Practice Law in the Indiana Courts Is No Longer Pending.
Indianapolis, Sept. 14.—In an opinion to Secretary of State Ellingham, Attorney General Honan takes the view that the proposed amendment to the state constitution giving the legislature the right to prescribe qualifications for admission to practice law in Indiana courts is not to go on the ballot this year.
This proposed amendment failed to get a majority of all votes cast at the election of 1910. It also failed in 1906. Mr. Honan bases his opinion on a decision of the supreme court in 1880, in which it was held that constitutional amendments shall not be submitted again to the people except through a valid statute. Hence as the legislature of 1911 took no steps to submit this measure again, it is the opinion of the attorney general that it is not now pending.
This proposed amendment, commonly known as the "lawyers' amendment," got considerable notice during the argument in the last legislature concerning the act providing for a "new" constitution, since held invalid. By many the view was taken that since the "lawyers' amendment" had failed because of a lack of majority of all votes cast at the election, and not because votes had been registered against it, that it still was pending, and was a bar to any other amendments being submitted.

HAZING ENDS IN THE DEATH OF A STUDENT
Four College Boys Held On Murder Charge.
Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 14.—Upon the charge of murder, four terror-stricken youths stood defendants in court, the result of the hazing of Isaac William Rand, son of a prominent lumberman of Smithfield.
The accused are sophomores at the University of North Carolina. They took Rand from his bed and made him sing and dance until he fell from a barrel and cut his throat on a broken bottle. The accused belong to widely known families. They are Robert W. Oldham of Raleigh; A. R. Stryon, ministerial candidate, of Wilmington; W. C. Merriman, Wilmington, and A. C. Hatch of Monroe.
The testimony of the court was that after they attended a reception to the freshmen by President Venable, they took Rand from his room and placed him on the barrel and forced him to sing and dance.
Robert Wellons, roommate of Rand, was also forced to dance and sing, and in a fall received slight injuries. Rand dropped from the barrel, fell upon the broken bottle, which pierced the jugular vein and carotid artery, and bled to death in ten minutes. Two of the sophomores fled, but the other two called doctors. The boy died before a doctor could reach Rand, and at the instance of President Venable the four men were arrested. Governor Kitchin called upon President Venable to go deeply into the matter, and be prepared to give a statement at the special meeting of the trustees called for this purpose.

Women Take a Hand.
Norwalk, O., Sept. 14.—Dressed as men, half a dozen women of Clark's field, a small town near here, after warning an eighteen-year-old girl to leave the village, caught her on the road after dark, stripped off her clothing and gave her a coat of tar. Following the tarring she and her sister, aged twenty, left town.

Caught by Falling Tree.
Muncie, Ind., Sept. 14.—Zachariah Johnson, aged seventy-five, a veteran of the civil war, was killed while chopping down a tree on his farm. He was caught between the falling tree and a wire fence.

TERSE TELEGRAMS
Colonel Roosevelt is now addressing the people of Utah.
While an aviator was volplaning down into the aerodrome at Ponferrada, Spain, he smashed into the grandstand and ten persons were seriously injured.
Mrs. Martha Lehman, the wife of Frederick Lehman, a New Rochelle (N. Y.) business man, was shot and fatally wounded while snipe hunting with a party near Port Washington, L. I.
The appointment of receivers for the United States Motor company at New York was followed by the appointment of ancillary receivers in other states where the company has property.
A strike of 2,000 men engaged in the building trades in Cincinnati is in progress as a result of strife between the International Association of Steam Fitters and the United Association of Plumbers.
Wavering returns seem to point to the failure of the Vermont Republicans to gain a majority for their candidate for governor in the legislature. Opponents claim they will be fourteen short.
The Cunningham coal claims in Alaska, involving alleged fraudulent patents, which precipitated the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy, finally have been disposed of, the interior department holding that the patents were improperly allowed and that the entry should be canceled.

Dragged by Freight Train.
Lawrenceburg, Ind., Sept. 14.—Albert J. Murray, aged thirty-seven, an electrician, fell when he attempted to climb on a moving freight train on the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern railroad. He was dragged nearly a mile, his clothing catching on the trucks of the car. His injuries may terminate fatally.

Horse Falls on Man, Killing Him.
Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 14.—Ray Kirkwood, aged thirty, a farmer living east of the city, was fatally injured when he was thrown from his horse and crushed beneath the animal, which fell on him. The horse stumbled and Kirkwood was thrown. He died a few hours later.

Covington Highwaymen Sentenced.
Covington, Ind., Sept. 14.—Hubert Howard was sentenced to state's prison for a term of from ten to twenty years by Judge Schoonover for burglary. Howard held up and robbed three men in the Big Four station on Aug. 18.

He Claims Self-Defense.
Madison, Ind., Sept. 14.—William Alexander was shot and instantly killed by Lon Thornton, night ferryman. The latter says Alexander was drinking and attacked Thornton, who shot in self-defense. Thornton is in custody.

Incendiaries at Work.
Linton, Ind., Sept. 14.—The home of Levi Davis was destroyed by fire. Kindling wood was piled between the screen and the door and saturated with oil. The family was visiting in Martin county, and no one was at home.

CEREAL CROPS IN NEW RECORD

Greater Than Ever Before in Country's History, According U. S. Bureau Report.

20.3 PER CENT. MORE IN WEIGHT

At Same Time Farm Prices Are Lower Than They Were a Year Ago.

The cereal crops of the country, from recent indications, will reach the unprecedented total production of 133,016,000 tons, Victor H. Olmsted, Chief of the Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Statistics, announced. With record-breaking crops of corn, spring wheat, oats, barley, rye and buckwheat, the year's harvest will be 20.3 per cent greater in weight than last year's production, 6.1 per cent greater than the big year of 1910 and 16.2 per cent greater than that of 1909.

Prospects for the record-breaking potato crop indicate it will be 36 per cent more than last year, when the crop was very short, 14 per cent more than in 1910, and 2 per cent more than in 1909, when the previous record production was harvested.

The hay yield is estimated at about 31 per cent more than last year, and 4 per cent more than in 1910 and 1909.

August, like July, was decidedly favorable for crop development through the country, Department of Agriculture official declare. They figure the composite condition of all crops on September 1 as being 16.5 per cent better than at that time a year ago, and 4.1 per cent better than a year ago, and 4.1 per cent better than the average condition on September 1 in recent years.

The condition (or production if harvested) of various crops on September 1, compared with their average (not normal condition on that date of recent years, follows: Peaches, 130; apples, 126.2; spring wheat, 118.7; oats, 117.1; pears, 110.8; hemp, 109.9; barley, 109.5; potatoes, 109.5; cabbage, 108.4; flaxseed, 107.5; cloverseed, 106.9; tomatoes, 106.5; onions, 106.4; millet, 106.2; buckwheat, 106; grapes, 105.4; Kafir corn, 105.2; alfalfa, 105.1; watermelons, 104.7; cantaloupes, 103.9; oranges, 103.8; broom corn, 103.2; hops, 102.4; sorghum, 102; cotton, 101.6; corn, 101.2; sugar beets, 101; rice, 101; lima beans, 100.6; dry beans, 100.5; tobacco, 99.4; cranberries, 99.1; peanuts, 98.6; sweet potatoes, 98.4; lemons, 97.8; sugar cane, 93.2.

There was a greater decline in the prices paid to farmers from August 1 to September 1, this year, than there was last year, the Department of Agriculture announced today. The average farm prices of the important crops (corn, wheat, oats, barley, rye, flaxseed, potatoes, tobacco, cotton and hay, which represent about three fourths of the value of all the country's crops) declined 7 per cent during the month, while in that time last year they declined in price only 4.4 per cent, and during the last four years the decline in price averaged 3.8 per cent. The average of farm prices on September 1 was 2.8 per cent lower than on that date last year, while it was four tenths of one per cent higher than on September 1, 1910, 3.5 per cent higher than in 1909, and 5.2 per cent higher than in 1908.

Prices paid to farmers on September 1, this year, with comparison of prices paid on the same last year follow:

	1912	1911
Wheat	$.776	$.650
Corn	.858	.848
Oats	.350	.404
Barley	.535	.770
Rye	.708	.769
Buckwheat	.766	.740
Flaxseed	1.626	2.036
Potatoes	.650	1.137
Hay	12.140	14.610
Cotton	.113	.118
Butter	.242	.231
Chickens	.113	.111
Eggs	.191	.174

On August 15 farm prices averaged:

Hogs	$7.110	$6.540
Veal	6.620	5.930
Butter	5.380	4.390
Sheep	4.260	3.980
Lambs	5.600	5.250

DEATH OF NOGI THRILLS JAPAN

Old Hero and His Wife Commit Hari Karl.

A SUPREME ACT OF DEVOTION

With Stoicism and Loyalty Worthy of Ancient Samurai, to Whose Traditions Gen. Nogi Fondly Clung, Hero of Port Arthur and His Faithful Wife Withdraw From Funeral of Beloved Emperor and Give Up Their Lives.

Tokio, Sept. 14.—Following the funeral ceremonies for Emperor Meiji, General Count Marosuke Nogi, supreme military councillor, the hero at the siege of Port Arthur and many other notable engagements, and his wife committed hari kari, and died soon afterward from their self-inflicted wounds.

General Nogi and the countess had attended the funeral services of the emperor at the palace here. At the conclusion of the ceremony at the palace they withdrew to their modest home in Akasaka, a suburb of Tokio, and there began preparations for their end. The general cut his throat with a short sword, while the countess resided with the Nogis found them dying.

The tragedy created a profound sensation. Those who knew General Nogi well declared that his calmness in killing himself was the kind of stoicism he always had displayed.

It is written that after the capture of Tientsin in the war between China and Japan, General Nogi, then commander of a brigade, stood apart from the other officers who were directing the reconstruction of walls broken by the Japanese fire, and when they looked toward him they found he was in tears. Nogi turned to them and called for a "banzai" to the emperor, through whose virtue the victory was won. Nogi seldom took credit to himself for the greatness of his exploits. It was the merit of the emperor which had won the battle. He was merely the servant and the greatness of the emperor had prevailed.

Notable Military Career.

Nogi sprang from the race of the Samurai. He was born in Choshu, a few miles from Tokio, in 1849. The generalship of Nogi first sprang into prominence at the battle of Kinchow, fought during the Japanese-Chinese war in the fall of 1894. Kinchow, a walled city on the Liaotung peninsula, was in the same area of conflict where Nogi won distinction in the Russian war ten years later. At the close of the former war Nogi retired to his house in Tokio, where he spent his time over his war books and war maps, preparing for the struggle that he knew must come against Russia. Nogi sent his two sons to the military college, with the intention of preparing them for the war when it should come. Both sons went to the front. The two boys were killed, the elder at Nanshan, the younger in the melee around 203 Metre hill in front of Port Arthur.

Nogi's capture of Port Arthur in the Russian-Jap war, after a stubborn and prolonged siege, was viewed as the greatest feat of his career. The terms of the capitulation of the stronghold were settled in a straw-thatched hut. Nogi came up to greet General Stoessel on horseback. The little Japanese dismounted and grasped the hand of the Russian standing on the ruins of the last fort to be sent skyward under the impulse of an exploded mine.

"I never expected to meet so pleasant a gentleman," said Stoessel, afterward. "He seemed more like an old friend than the leader of a hostile army."

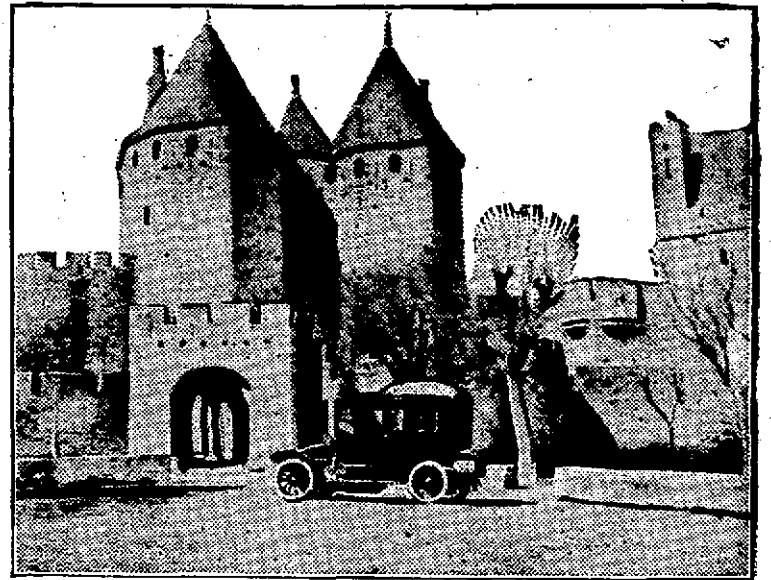

In 1907 Nogi, at the command of the emperor, took the honorary presidency of a school for young peers. He put them under such rigorous rule that their preceptress rebelled. Nogi ordered them to wear cotton dresses and discard the silk gowns to which they were used. When the preceptress objected, he ordered her to leave and the young peers threatened to follow. But so strict was the general's military rule that they remained and the preceptress went. Nogi took that place out of loyalty to the emperor. And he tried to call back to Japan the old ideals of Spartan life from which he feared the people were falling away. It may be that his death was an attempt to remind the people of the old Japan's strict rules of living, an attempt in which he involved his wife.

Shidzu, whom he married more than thirty years ago, was fifty-three years old when she shared her husband's death. She had been schooled in the military traditions and followed Nogi's life with the faithfulness of the ancient rule. She accepted the death of her two sons as part of her obligation to the emperor.

Two Shot From Ambush.

Buffalo, Sept. 14.—Mystery surrounds the probably fatal shooting of George Hanner of this city, and the wounding of his wife while riding in their automobile near North Tonawanda. It is said that Hanner, a wealthy man, will probably die. The shooting was from ambush. Hanner and his wife insist that they have not the slightest idea who was responsible.

Simon De Montfort's Towers

Among the interesting structures in the old city of Carcassonne, in southern France, is that here pictured, known as Simon de Montfort's Towers. It is said these towers were designed to represent the bows of a ship in order to commemorate the builder's safe return from the crusades.

CURING DISEASED METALS

It has been discovered that the metal aluminum has a disease, and a careful diagnosis by chemists discloses the fact that it is probably due to the action of water containing lime. Tin is made ill by extreme cold, and some other metals have their pests just as plants and vegetables have, and it takes careful investigation and a long series of experiments to learn the source of the trouble. The aluminum illness was treated first by Professors Heyn and Bauer of the laboratory at Gross-Lichterfelde, near Berlin.

Cooking utensils were found to be most affected, and the experiments were begun on several pots which were made by cold rolling. Numerous spots on their surface lay in particular directions, running straight on the flat bottom, and in curved lines on the convex sides. They corresponded to the direction of stretching of the metal. Chemical tests of the deposit at the spots indicated showed the presence of water, alumina and lime. Similar metal was then subjected to all the conditions that had surrounded the use of the kitchen utensils. It was early concluded that neither impurities in the metal nor atmospheric changes were responsible for the disease.

It appeared, however, that city water had a deleterious effect on the general health of the aluminum sheets undergoing the test. The thickest sheets were attacked by the city water. After analyzing the water and continuing the experiments with different kinds of water, Professor Heyn was able to decide that lime salts were probably the cause of the disease, and suggests that aluminum utensils be subjected as little as possible to limy water.

OBSERVE ANCIENT CEREMONY

The ancient ceremony of the planting of the "penny hedge," or horn-garth, was observed recently near Whitby, England. The custom is supposed to be of feudal origin. Its observance is connected with a farm about six miles from Whitby near Robin Hood's Bay, and if the ceremony be not duly observed "on the morn of the eve of Ascension Day" the farm lands must revert to the holder or holders of the manorial rights. The tenant of the farm along with the bailiff lays the hedge with "ten stakes, ten strout-stowers, and ten yadders." The ancient horn is blown, the tenant shouts, "Out on ye, out on ye," and the ceremony is over.

WARMING THE WORLD

Artificial warming of the world is one of the greatest of modern problems and yet the earth is itself a vast furnace, whose flames are sometimes aggressively active and destructive. Italians are planning to use some of this heat. A boiler is to be installed at some point where the internal fires of Vesuvius are accessible and hot water is to be piped to the neighboring towns.

MAKING SOFT IRON HARD

The manner in which soft iron may be converted into hard faced armor plate by the infusion process appears in the case of a test which has recently been made. A bullet was fired from a rifle at a distance of thirty-six feet against the surface of an iron plate which had been treated by the infusion process, striking with a velocity of 2,700 feet a second. The hardened surface caused the rifle ball to rebound with such directness that it struck the stock of the gun from which it had been fired, imbedding itself in the wood and narrowly escaping the person of the marksman by whom the shot had been fired.

GREAT PAGODA OF WU-CHANG

The immense pagoda, built in the best Chinese style of architecture, is one of the interesting sights in the great and progressive city of Wu-Chang, the capital of the province of Hu-peh.

QUEER LIVING FISH NET

A peculiar method of fishing is employed by the natives of certain of the islands of Oceania. At stated intervals about two hundred of them will assemble on the beach, and all together plunge into the water, each carrying a branch of the cocoa palm.

At a given distance from the shore they will turn toward it, and form a compact half circle, each holding his palm branch perpendicularly in the water, thus forming a kind of seine. The leader of the party gives a signal, and this living net approaches the shore gradually, in perfect order, driving before it a multitude of fishes. Surrounded by this living wall and caught in the cocoa palm branches many of the fish are cast on the sands and others are killed with sticks.

Part of Wall of Hadrian

The great Roman barrier in Great Britain, known as the Wall of Hadrian, extends from Bowness on the Solway to Wallsend on the Tyne, and is 73 1/2 miles in length. It swerves from a straight line only to take in the boldest elevations on its route, and it never bends in a curve but always in an angle. It was built to repel the incursions of the northern barbarians into the territory occupied by the Romans. The part of the wall here shown is at Cuddy's Crag.

Democratic "Economy."

The managers of the Western headquarters of the National Republican Committee are compiling figures on the records of the Democrats in Congress, which they declare will make unpleasant campaign reading for the opponents of President Taft. These figures will show that more than a dozen investigations, which have cost already $100,000 in the aggregate—with an equal amount appropriated for a continuation of various inquiries—have been under way since the Democratic party came into control in the lower body. At the beginning of the Sixty-second Congress it was declared that the Democratic party would "show up the extravagance of Republican rule for the last sixteen years." Nine committees on expenditures in the several government departments were set to work. Not one of them has produced anything which will be of aid to the Democrats in seeking control of the next House.

In addition to these nine committees various special committees were set on the trail of the trusts and other things supposed to be inimical to the public welfare. Chief among those was the Stanley Steel investigating Committee. It investigated for more than a year, spent $39,000, compiled a voluminous record which no one except the members of the committee has read—and made a report. There were nine members of the committee and five separate reports were filed.

The bills suggested by the Stanley Committee were referred to the House Judiciary Committee, which promises "to give them attention when we take up the trust question." Meanwhile the Judiciary Committee has an appropriation of $25,000 to conduct an independent investigation of the trusts, and has just started on the task of spending the money.

The Pujo Committee was allotted $150,000 to discover the "money trusts." It has spent to date about $8,000.

The House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, desiring publicity of its own, was voted $25,000 to investigate the shipping trusts.

The Hardwick Sugar Investigating Committee spent $11,486 investigating transactions a decade old, in which several financiers who are now dead figured. It filed a report months ago which even its friends acknowledged was a "milk and water" affair. The report has not been mentioned since its presentation and will not make a hit in the campaign.

Especially disappointing from the Democratic point of view has been the work of the House Committee on Expenditures in the Department of the Interior, commonly called the Graham Committee. This committee expended $10,472 on investigations of the Interior Department. It abandoned the fake Comptroller Bay charges; dropped the "Dick to Dick" forgery; flirited a bit with the White Earth Indian reservation "scandal," and now promises to make a report some time on the ancient Warren fence law controversy in Wyoming.

The Committee on Expenditure in the Postoffice Department collected a record of nearly 8,000 printed pages on the old Lewis Publishing Company case, which dates back to 1907. More than $7,000 was spent. No report has been filed.

The Committee on Expenditures in the Department of Agriculture investigated the Wiley-McCabe controversy, the Everglades charges and the meat inspection service, at a cost of $3,216. None of the reports was surprising, nor did the committee live up to expectations in furnishing campaign material.

This is also true of the committee which began an investigation of the State Department. The "report" of this committee consisted of a letter written by its Democratic chairman to Representative Cline, of Indiana, who had nothing to do with the investigation, but who is preparing a speech for use during the campaign. Representative Beall, who heads the Committee on Expenditures in the Department of Justice, devoted much labor to inquiry into the Greene and Gaynor case, now a decade old, on the assumption that the department paid excessive fees to special attorneys. Mr. Beall is going to file a report later, perhaps.

Sam Sanderson Says:

That, after all, there are a lot of ways to keep from being involved in a political argument.

Months ago to uncover "rottenness" in the government departments in Washington have abandoned their search and no reports have been filed. It is expected that Democratic spellbinders during the approaching campaign will talk loudly of the tariff, but there will be a woful lack of oratory concerning the scandals in the government affairs which the House committees sought at great public expense but wholly without results.

Farm Crops and H. C. L.

One of the reasons for the increasing cost of living is furnished by a census bulletin just issued, although no mention of that detail is contained therein. The bulletin shows that while the market value of the leading crops increased enormously, the quantity made only a slight gain, in most cases. The aggregate selling price of the crops of all sorts jumped from $2,999,000,000 in 1899 to $5,487,000,000 in 1909, or a gain of 83 per cent, while the quantity of those things cereal and other, increased only 9.9 per cent.

Here is one decidedly obvious cause of the advance in the cost of living. While 1909 is the latest year covered by this census leaflet, the story which it tells would merely be emphasized if it were brought down to to-day. There has been no material increase in the output since 1909, but the market value of the aggregate yield has gone up far in this time. We pay more for our food, and also for our clothing, the cotton fabrics as well as the woolen, than we did then. Cereals increased in production in the decade here covered by only 1.7 per cent, but their value rose 79.8 per cent. Cotton production increased in that time only 11.7 per cent, but the producers got 117.3 per cent more for their crop.

The remedy, of course, is to increase the output so as to make it come nearer meeting the demand than it has done in recent years. The 21 per cent growth of the country's population in the past decade was several times as great as the expansion in cotton and wool, taken together, while it was many times greater than that in the food articles. Here is a chance for that so-called "scientific farming," of which we hear much. On far poorer soil the European wheat raiser produces from 50 to 80 per cent more of that cereal, on an average, than does the American farmer. Incidentally, here is the chief reason why our exports of agricultural products have fallen off materially in recent years. Prices are too high for European consumers.

1804—Governor of New Brunswick forced to order out troops to quell a riot among oyster strikers at Amboy.

1828—Peace of Adrianople was declared.

1854—English and French forces landed in the Crimea.

1864—Secretary Stanton announced that a draft would be put into effect on September 19 in all States and districts in which the quota had not been filled.

1868—Georgia House of Representatives resolved that negro members having one-sixth negro blood are ineligible to vote.

1824—Antagonism between clerical and liberals in Belgium threatened to result in civil war.

1904—Japanese attempt to resume attack on Mukden in spite of almost impossible weather conditions.

1903—President Taft began his 13,000 mile journey through the West and South.

Judge Robert Lovett succeeded E. H. Harriman as chairman of the Executive Committee of the Harriman roads.

1911—President Taft dismissed charge against Dr. Wiley of the Bureau of Chemistry.

Editorialettes:

Newcastle would be in a sad plight if Rushville did not hold a revival occasionally so that the newspapers could coyly observe "that they are going to have another big revival down at Rushville to back up the backsliders."

And that reminds us again—pardon, please, for the repetition—of the woman who was accused of backsliding during the Orr meeting a year ago last June when she refused to attend because the seats didn't have backs on them.

Even at that, the reduction in the cost of luseed oil will not make our breakfast cost any the less.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

BOOSTING THE RATIO.
(Sullivan Union.)

When it comes to the publication of a real newspaper, the Indianapolis Star, in its over-zealous efforts for the progressive cause, seeks to distort the facts to suit its own purposes. Through the columns of the Star it is noted that readers have called the Star's attention to this fact. The Star has attempted to deny such charges and in a statement to an inquiring newspaper asked that the said paper be more specific.

Here is a specific statement for the Star. When the recent progressive county convention was held in Sullivan a representative of the Star sent a story of the convention by telegraph. The article stated that nineteen delegates participated in the convention, but when the Star printed the story the next day, its Sullivan telegram stated that 200 progressives took part in the convention.

Can the Star make a specific statement in regard to this matter?

The telegram to the Star is on file here, under date of August 13, and the issue of the Star of the 14th of August states that the number was two hundred.

It is all right for the Star to be zealous in its editorial columns for the cause it espouses, but it should not distort the facts in its news columns. Once convicted of falsifying and a newspaper's readers will hesitate to believe anything it has to say.

Terms Hod Stillwell Debaucher of Voters

(Winchester Herald.)

This week the Bull Moosers held a rally at Winchester. The Indianapolis Star described it in glowing terms, but here in part is the Winchester Herald's version of it:

Although the Herald cannot, with regard for strict truth, endorse the glowing statement of the Indianapolis Star that "thousands braved the heat to hear the candidates talk" and that "an audience of three thousand gathered in the afternoon beneath the grateful shade of the elm trees" and occupied the "seats built for two thousand people." Yet it can be cheerfully said that the day was warm, that the candidates did talk, and that the seats were full, even if the grateful elm were but poor maples and the seats held a hundred and fifty men, women and children. And for the sake of charity it may be hoped that the slight mistakes of the Star were not deliberate and wilful misrepresentations but radiant imaginings of an enthusiastic reporter.

On the estimate of a well known Bull Moose of this city, about four hundred and fifty voters heard Toner and Beveridge in the afternoon, and, we were going to say, half that number heard the Honorable Horace Stillwell in the morning, but everybody within a mile of the court house heard the Knight of the Black Satchel.

Horace arrived on the morning train from the west, and at no reception committee met him, he was compelled to walk, alone and unnoticed, all the way to the court house. It may be that his unpardonable breach of courtesy was the factor which gave strength to his voice and bitterness to his tongue when he arose to sound the Moose call a couple of hours later. It cannot be that our local Progressive leaders wished to avoid him or feared that the odium of his name might attach to them, when only a few weeks ago one of our most prominent ministers of the gospel publicly wept upon his neck, clasped his hand and called him by the name of Brother!

At any rate, Horace was there with the spleen, which he vented principally upon Jim Watson and the Editor of the Herald. His speech consisted chiefly of a vociferous effort to convince the crowd that he, Horace, is for the people all the time and has always been an apostle of righteousness and purity, while the objects of his venom are seeking to destroy the government, the home, and the fireside. He did not elaborate on that well known epoch of his political career when, in 1906, while he was making the race for the Republican congressional nomination from this district, he sent to Winchester the money to buy every precinct committeeman in the county. It is presumed his native modesty forbade mention of his own brilliant personal achievements.

In the afternoon Edward C. Toner, editor of the Anderson Herald, and Bull Moose nominee for congress, addressed the crowd.

Mr. Toner repeated the statement, which has been made by every Progressive candidate in the field, that Roosevelt was nominated at Chicago, but, as usual, omitted to state the facts upon which his statement was presumably based. In other words, it was a case of "take it from me, boys."

At last the real orator of the day the true savior of the nation, the great Albert Jeremiah, arrived on the platform. He had been in town for nearly an hour, preparing to come forth but waiting for the impatience of the crowd to develop until his reception should be insured; waiting at the Randolph Hotel, carefully guarded by the watchful Horace, demanding his dinner, for which no arrangements had been made, after the dining room had closed. . . . Mr. Beveridge opened with an eloquent plea for the home and fireside, then launched into an attack upon the bi-partisan boss system which, to use his own language, "I found in the senate and I fought with all MY small strength." He then showed what this supposed Boss system does, by three illustrations; For the first he used the meat inspection bill, detailing how he fought for its passage in the senate, single handed, (for the argument see last week's Breeder's Gazette); for the second, he took up the tobacco tax and, as he closed this illustration, became too eloquent and nearly fell overboard, to the evident distress and concern of the august eyed (and chinned) Horace.

In the third and last cage, he exhibited the Payne-Aldrich tariff law, (which has ruined our farmers) and, showing how tariff legislation is passed in our national congress, made a plea for a tariff commission.

The candidate then discussed the first Lorimer investigation in the senate, declared that he was the only man who read the entire testimony in the case, assailed the invisible government, whatever that is, and made the remarkable declaration that Mr. Taft, in accepting the nomination at Chicago, was guilty of Treason against the government of the United States. Although Mr. Beveridge cited some cases wherein he insists frauds were committed, as in the Thirteenth District and in the Indianapolis elections, yet he carelessly failed to show any facts upon which even the most radical moose could subscribe to his charge of treason.

The Senator sought to show that because Rockefeller is for Taft and Thomas F. Ryan for Wilson, therefore each candidate is boss ridden and controlled by the money powers. He thoughtlessly omitted to state the corollary in which it must appear because George W. Perkins and Boss Bill Flynn is supporting Roosevelt, and therefore the only thing an honest man can do is to vote for Debbs. And in conclusion, Mr. Beveridge sounded the battle call of the Moose when he eulogized the modest Theodore as "the greatest man since Lincoln, raised by the Lord to lead the chosen people out of the wilderness."

The Senator did not discuss the initiative, referendum and recall, nor did he expound the doctrine of equal suffrage; hence for light on the former doctrine the voters of Randolph county must look elsewhere. But, from the frequency of his appeals to the women in the audience, of whom there were many, and his constant and passionate endeavors to save the home and fireside, we infer that woman's suffrage and Mary of the vine-clad cottage are not completely forgotten.

MAKE NIGHT TRIP TO MONTICELLO

The Rev. J. B. Meacham and Don Cochran Confer With Dr. Biederwolf Concerning Tabernacle.

ARRANGEMENTS ARE MADE

Committee Meets Today and Agrees to Stand Good For Material

so Work Can Begin.

Due to a midnight trip to Monticello last night by the Rev. John B. Meacham, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, and Don Cochran, it was possible to purchase the lumber this morning and have it moved to the Mull lot so that work on the tabernacle for the evangelistic campaign, which will be started a week from tomorrow, can be started Monday. A number of men have volunteered to assist in the erection of the building.

Mr. Cochran, who is one of Dr. Biederwolf's helpers, and who will oversee the work of erecting the tabernacle, arrived yesterday only to learn that no financial arrangements had been made for the erection of the structure. He and the local ministers were confronted with a problem which had to be solved immediately so that the lumber could be bought today and work started Monday, because then only a week will remain in which to build it.

Dr. Biederwolf assured the Rushville ministers and laymen interested in the coming revival that there would be no necessity of raising a fund in advance to defray the expenses of building the tabernacle, and to pay other incidental expenses. For that reason the local people had not arranged for the purchase of lumber, but had expected the custodian to be prepared to go to work at once.

Mr. Cochran said that he had not been informed as to what course to pursue. He decided that the only course open was to make a hurry-up trip to Monticello, where Dr. Biederwolf is staying for a few days. He asked that a local representative would accompany him. The Rev. J. B. Meacham volunteered to go, and he and Mr. Cochran left last night at six o'clock, arriving at Monticello at nine-thirty o'clock. After a hurried consultation with Dr. Biederwolf, they left Monticello at two o'clock this morning and arrived back here at five-thirty o'clock.

Dr. Biederwolf said that he would stand behind the tabernacle committee if its members would order the material so that the work could proceed at once. He guaranteed to take the building off the hands of the committee at four hundred dollars.

When the Rev. Mr. Meacham and Mr. Cochran arrived here this morning a meeting of the tabernacle committee was hurriedly called. The members of the committee agreed to the plan of Dr. Biederwolf and the lumber was ordered so that work can be started Monday.

The Milroy, Carthage and Morris-town churches will co-operate with the local churches in the meeting. They have already engaged their evangelists who will work in unison with Dr. Biederwolf, and a successful evangelistic campaign is promised.

PAPERS BEING PREPARED

Looking Toward Organization of a Taft Club For Campaign.

Papers were being prepared today looking toward the organization of a Taft club in Rush county. It is expected that they will be circulated in a few days to get signers who will become members. Many have greeted the news of the organization of such a club with enthusiasm and it is very probable that the first organization of the campaign will start out with a formidable membership.

AMUSEMENTS

The Princess has the usual two pictures tonight. "The Prize Essay" is a feature Lubin drama. It tells a beautiful story and is acted in a very pleasing way. "The Troublesome Step Daughters" is a Vitagraph comedy, featuring John Bunny. Mr. Summer will sing the Jew song hit, "Don't Do That Bear Cat Sadie!"

The difference between careful stage management and haphazard work is well illustrated in the case of "A Butterfly on the Wheel" which was produced in New York last season by Lewis Waller, the English actor-manager, under Shubert auspices. This is a drama by Edward G. Hemmerde, K. C., and Francis Neilson, M. P., which had a long run in London with Mr. Lewis Waller in the leading role. When Mr. Waller came to New York to appear in "The Garden of Allah" he brought with him the American rights for "A Butterfly on the Wheel" and early in the season brought out the piece at the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre. Its success was immediate. Now that its long run in New York has come to a termination Mr. Waller is sending the company on tour and it will be seen at the Murat theatre the entire week of September 16th with matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

"A Butterfly on the Wheel" is a story of the wife of a member of British Parliament, who commits a slight indiscretion. This, however, is sufficient for the husband to sue for divorce and the big scene in the play shows the court room with the "butterfly" on the witness stand. The prosecution has gathered an abundance of evidence, much of which has been gained by hired detectives. It is the endeavor of the prosecuting attorney to handle the witness as roughly as possible and by means fair or unfair hold her up in the eyes of the court and the jury as a guilty woman.

As the case progresses it is evident that the sympathy of the audience is with the witness, yet the same feeling is not to be found on the stage for, although she makes frequent appeals to the mercy of the court she is told to answer questions and not offer criticism. In the end she breaks down under the fire of the fierce cross examination.

The play is told in four acts, the first two taking place in a room in a Paris hotel where the wife, owing to peculiar circumstances, finds herself alone with the man who is named as correspondent. The fourth act, which takes place in the home of the member of Parliament, brings about a happy reconciliation, and it should be said, a perfectly natural one, for the husband is not slow in recognizing the great injustice he has done his wife by suspecting her of guilt and subjecting her to the horrors of the trial.

SOCIETY NEWS

Chris Reiger of near St. Paul, and Miss M. Gaynell Lane of Milroy, were united in marriage at eight o'clock Thursday evening by the Rev. H. H. She is the daughter of Mrs. Belle Lane, and is a pretty and popular girl. Mr. Reiger is a well-to-do farmer, a hustling and enterprising young man, and already has a home furnished for his bride on a farm near St. Paul, where they will take up their residence immediately.

STEERING ROD BROKE

While motoring west of Falmouth one day this week the steering rod broke on Simon Martin's auto and the machine swerved quickly to the side of the road. Mr. Martin was accompanied by his wife and Ed Lister and wife. Luckily they were climbing a hill at moderate speed as the rod broke, and had the accident happened 200 feet below the hill the machine would have struck a ten foot ditch with disastrous results. They were delayed on the scene for five hours until a steering rod was procured from Dr. Smullen.

MAN SEES HORSE TORN FROM WAGON

Frank Conner Sits on Wagon Seat

While Animals Are Hit by

Interurban—One Killed.

HIS MIRACULOUS ESCAPE

Returning to Lewisville from Millville with a load of poultry Thursday afternoon, Frank Conner had a narrow escape from death when his team collided with the eastbound limited car due at Lewisville at 2:50, says the Lewisville Road Traveler. The accident happened at stop 112, near Sam Pickering's. This place has always been regarded as a dangerous crossing, and the fast moving car was upon the team before the driver was aware of it.

One horse was instantly killed and knocked several feet away into a ditch, never putting forth a struggle. Most remarkable is it that the other animal received not the slightest scratch, its harness simply being torn loose from the wagon whereupon the animal started north up the road. Excepting the tongue and single-tree, which were torn loose, the wagon was otherwise uninjured. Mr. Conner remaining on the seat until after the car passed.

HE SKIPS WITH THE CHANGE

A new swindle is being worked in this part of the State and the unsuspected have been relieved of a considerable sum of coin of the realm. The scheme used in inducing people to part with their money is very unusual, and one which is calculated to conviction of honesty to the average person. In the first place the swindler secures a copy of a daily paper and runs his eye over the "For Rent" column. He selects one that seems to promise results and immediately sets forth to call upon the owner. He has a story to the effect that he wishes to rent a house in preparation for the coming of his wife to the city. He then obtains a key to the vacant house, and after looking through the property declares himself satisfied and proceeds to rent it. He then expresses his wish to make a part payment on the first month's rent. He asks the renter to change $20 as he wants to pay $10. The owner produces the change whereupon he tenders a worthless check for $20, which is accepted. The swindler pockets the ten dollars and departs.

The Sable Lorcha

BY
Horace Hazeltine

Nor did the absence of a specified date for the second promised demonstration of power tend to relieve our uneasiness. In this silence we found the acme of cunning cruelty. Any day, at any hour, some other mystifying, soul-torturing incident was liable to occur.

I tried to argue that the seventh day was implied, inasmuch as the second note was received on the same day of the month as the first, and was a mere continuation of the original threat. But my contention lacked the intrinsic strength which carries conviction, and, as Cameron put it, we could only "watch and wait," for the communications offered no alternative. They made no demand which being complied with would avert penalty. Only implacable and inevitable retribution, calm, patient, and determined, effused from every line.

But, in spite of Cameron's evident anxiety—and in using that term I am very mildly stating his obvious condition of mind—he sternly refused to consult either the police or the private detectives.

"You may not know," he explained, "that I am largely interested in a certain line of industrial enterprises, the shares of which are listed on the New York Stock Exchange. Should the public become aware that my life is threatened, very serious consequences might ensue in the market. No, Clyde, whatever is done, must be done by ourselves, and by friends whom we can trust absolutely. I can take no risk of this horrid thing getting into the newspapers. Besides," he added, with a kindly, considerate smile, "Evelyn must be kept in ignorance. Not for worlds would I have her troubled by our perplexing enigma."

My suggestion that he should go abroad for a time, or at least spend a few weeks at Newport, was met with similar obstinate refusal.

"I admit that I have been somewhat upset by this extraordinary combination," was the way he expressed it, "but I am not a coward. I am not going to run. Even if I were inclined to do so, what should I gain? If a man be not safe in his own house, where in Heaven's name is he likely to find safety?"

Quite naturally I was led by this expression to inquire whether, perchance, he mistrusted any of the many persons who were employed in the house and about the estate. But, somewhat to my surprise, he was almost gravely offended by the mere suggestion. Nevertheless there were several features of the affair, chief of them the manner in which the letters were received; which caused me to dwell with some mental persistence on this as the most profitable ground for speculation. And when at length, in the morning's small hours, I returned to my home and to my bed, I carried the thought with me.

The sowing of this seed in the subconscious garden of my mind brought forth fruit after its kind. I awoke with a perfectly clear understanding of how that which, the night before, had seemed so impossible of accomplishment was, perhaps, after all, merely a bar-lequin trick, quite simple when explained.

With the new day, too, and the sunlight, and the cheery brightness of my own rooms, there came a lifting of that oppressive atmosphere of the esoteric which at Cameron's had set my nerves out of plumb and my reason

HELP WANTED IN RUSHVILLE

And Furnished by the Help of Rushville People.

Those who suffer with kidney backache, urinary ills or any other kidney or bladder disorder, want kidney help. Who can better advise than some Rushville resident, who has also suffered, but has had relief. Rushville people recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Here's one case and there are many others.

Mrs. Jacob Roth, 820 N. Perkins street, Rushville, Ind., says: "We always have Doan's Kidney Pills in the house and are glad to confirm what we previously said in their praise. This remedy has been used time and time again by different members of the family and has never failed to give relief from kidney and bladder trouble. I know that Doan's Kidney Pills can be relied upon and I never fail to recommend them when I hear anyone complaining of kidney trouble."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

HAY FEVER ILLS QUICKLY RELIEVED

With a Cleansing, Healing Antiseptic Cream, Stops Sneezing Instantly.

Many people suppose there is no cure for Hay Fever, and think, once one has had an attack, they must suffer every summer from hay fever time until frost comes. Some of the more fortunate seek relief in cooler climate, but thousands suffer at home, and often make their condition worse by using strong snuffs, powders and sprays.

There is no need of your being a victim of this disease any longer, and you don't have to run away to escape it either. Just get a fifty cent bottle of Ely's Cream Balm, place a little in the nostrils, draw the pleasant, aromatic fumes back into the head, and see how quickly you will get relief.

It opens up the air passages almost instantly, stops the sneezing, running at the nose and weeping. Furthermore, it doesn't simply give you temporary relief, but it heals and strengthens the sensitive membrane lining of the nose and throat, and restores it to normal, healthy condition, thus protecting you against a return of the trouble.

All druggists sell and recommend it. Get a bottle today. If you are not satisfied after fair trial, your druggist will give you back every cent you paid for it.

on the bias. Indeed I was fully convinced that we had been foolishly constructing an Alpine chain out of a miserable little row of mole hills, and I determined to lose no time in bringing Cameron, whom I now regarded as most needlessly alarmed, to my own wholesome way of thinking.

Directly after breakfast, therefore, I set forth on foot for my neighbor's, choosing the shore road as the more direct of the two routes.

Personally, my taste in landscape is for distant view in preference to near-at-hand foliage. My own house, which is fashioned in semblance of a Pompeian villa, its cream-white walls punctuated with shutters of a somewhat vivid pea-green and crowned by gently sloping roofs of the same bright color, gazes out across Stamford Harbor and the blue waters of the Sound, to where on clear days the pencilled outline of Eaton's Neck shows purpling in the distance. There are no towering, umbrageous trees to interrupt the outlook; only low, carefully-trimmed shrubs, adorning a series of marble sculpture-dotted terraces, well below the line of vision. But the Cameron place, reflecting the Townsbury penchant for arboriculture, is quite the reverse. The prospect from the windows and verandahs of the fine old mansion is all green vistas and leafy perspectives, with only a glint of sun-sparkled waves, chance-caught between gray boles or when the wind spreads a momentary opening in the foliage.

My way to Cameron's led through a veritable forest of such luxuriant leafage that the path more than half the time was in twilight, while to right and left the shadows deepened into dark in the cloistral recesses of the woodland heart. The silence was profound. No voice of bird nor scurrying foot of squirrel invaded the morning hush of those ramous depths. My own footsteps on the soft turf returned no sound.

A half-mile or more I had walked in this mute greenwood peace, when sharp and clear there echoed through the verdurous aisles the crack of a rifle, and I came to a sudden, involuntary halt.

Then it occurred to me that it was the third day of the open season for rail birds, and that it was the report of a shotgun I had heard, fired by some sportsman, off on the shore, there, to my right. And so I resumed my tramp, with ears keen for a repetition. Almost immediately I was rewarded, and then I knew that it was no rail bird gunner, for the shot was unmistakably a rifle shot, and it was fired in the depth of the wood, to the left of me.

Three times more I heard it, in fairly rapid succession, and sounding always from about the same direction. I cannot say that it gave me any uneasiness, but it perplexed me in a mild way, arousing a passing curiosity as to its object. And then, I came out upon the well-kept, gravelled drive which circles the close-cropped, velvety Cameron lawn, and catching sight of Cameron himself, in riding breeches and puttees, romping with one of his picturesquely graceful Russian wolf-hounds, promptly forgot all about it.

He came across the sward to meet me, the great, gaunt white hound pressing close to his side, and I thought I saw that he, too, had experienced the inspiring influence of the morning.

"I have found an answer," I cried, while he was still fifty yards away, "possibly the answer."

He raised his brows in question, and the hound, with open jaws, fondled his wrist.

"I had a horseback ride before breakfast," he told me, as he shook my hand. "Then I spent an hour at the kennels. We've a fine new brood of collie puppies. You must see them."

"I want to," I returned.

"What do you say to tennis?" he suggested, irrelevantly. "Just a bet. It's a fine morning for tennis."

"If you can lend me a pair of shoes," I consented, glancing down at my boots. "A dozen pairs," he smiled. "Come up to my dressing room. Louis will fit you out."

I was scarcely prepared for this change in my friend's mood, and far from happy over it. He was evidently determined to ignore the subject that had so engrossed us the night before, hoping to find surcease of harassing thought in a restless round of activities. The condition was a morbid one which I believed should be discouraged; the more so as I possessed what I fancied was a perfectly practical solution of that which hitherto had seemed to us an inexplicable phenomenon. And I was a little annoyed, too, that my good tidings should be thus disregarded.

When, therefore, we had entered the hall and Cameron was leading towards the broad, ascending staircase, I paused.

"Do you mind giving me just a minute?"

He stopped, turned, and stood in questioning silence.

"A minute in your study," I added, in explanation.

Reluctantly, it seemed to me, he crossed to the study door, and throwing it open, stood aside that I might precede him.

The room appeared far less grim and gloomy than when I had last entered it. Its windows faced the south; and between the olive-green tapestry curtains the sun poured in a flood, lighting up the far corners, glinting on the gilt ornaments of the writing table, and bathing in dazzling splendor the burnished bronzes on the crowded top of the book-shelves.

"I see you are not disposed to resume our discussion of last night," I began, when Cameron, having closed the door behind him, halted just inside, and with hands in pockets, awaited my opening.

"But I want to show you that we have been in very much the same position as the wondering children who watch the prestidigitator. We have imagined something amazingly like a miracle, which, in point of fact, is capable of a very simple, commonplace explanation."

"You mean the cutting out of the head of the portrait?" he asked, with kindling interest.

"I do."

"You have discovered how it was done, before my eyes, so to speak, and yet—?"

"I have discovered how it may have been done," I interrupted.

He moved his head just perceptibly from side to side in skeptical gesture.

"The door of this room is seldom locked?" I queried, ignoring the indicated skepticism.

"Never locked," he answered.

"It would be quite possible for any one, knowing that you were absent, to spend an hour or so here uninterupted?"

"Any one?" he questioned.

"Any one who had gained entrance to the house," I amplified.

"Oh, yes, I presume so."

"They would have ample time to clear a space on the book-shelves, climb up, and carefully cut out the head, or any part, or the whole of a portrait, if they were so inclined?"

I paused for his answer, but he only smiled with a sort of incredulous tolerance.

"Would they not?" I insisted. But Cameron was most perverse this morning.

"My dear Clyde," he scoffed, "of what use is all this? The portrait was cut, not while I was absent, but while I was present. I saw it complete at three o'clock; at twelve minutes past three, it was mutilated."

"My contention is," I explained, quite patiently, "that while you saw it complete at three o'clock, the cut had already been made, but the cut portion had not been removed. In other words, the cutting having been deftly done with a thin, sharp knife, it was perfectly feasible to leave the portrait apparently intact, though with the slightest effort the incised portion could subsequently be released—with, say, a piece of cord, glued to the back for that especial purpose."

Now that I had made myself clear, Cameron was quick to acknowledge the possibility of such a method.

"And the cord, you mean, led down behind the book-shelves, and perhaps through a window?" he suggested.

"Precisely. And was pulled by some

Money Back Catarrh Remedy

Dosing the stomach won't kill Catarrh germs. Neither will sprays, douches, snuffs or ointments.

The quickest way to kill germs is to breathe the deep into the lungs the vaporized air of Booth's HYOMEI.

As this antiseptic air passes over the sore spots infested with Catarrh germs, it not only destroys them, but heals the inflamed membrane and stops the discharge of mucus.

Then hawking, spitting, snuffing, crusts in nose and foul breath will disappear, and vile, disgusting Catarrh will be conquered.

A complete HYOMEI outfit, which includes a hard rubber inhaler, only costs $1.00. Extra bottles, if afterwards needed, 50c; and F. B. Johnson is authorized to refund your money if dissatisfied.

one on the outside."

"Yes," he said, thoughtfully. "Such an explanation is not unreasonable. The thing, really, must have been done in some such way."

"And don't you see," I hurried on with my advantage, "how utterly cheap this makes the whole affair? There's nothing at all impressive in that performance when you find out how it was done. If the next demonstration is no better than such claptrap, you may rest assured you have a very picayunish sort of mountebank villain to deal with. So, cheer up, my dear man, and I'll show you a few tricks at tennis that may be equally eye-opening."

Unquestionably my friend appeared relieved. But I came to fancy later that the appearance was feigned for my benefit. Certainly he was not convinced, and in that proved himself possessed of an intuition, a world more accurate than my own.

SACRED CATTLE FOR BEEF

There are nearly 2,500 sacred cattle of India on the ranches near Pierce and Fort Lavaca, Tex., and elsewhere throughout the state of Oklahoma. A strange looking creature, indeed, is the sacred cow. Its distinctive characteristic is a huge lump at its shoulders, an unusually prominent "dewlap" and large, drooping ears. While the original importation of the humped Zebu cattle has grown to a remarkable degree, nevertheless the most interest is attached to the crossing of the type with our domestic cattle. It has been found that the cross-breeds remain relatively free from ticks while other stock in the same pastures would be literally covered with these pests, which cause the dreaded "Texas fever," necessitating the frequent quarantining of the whole southwestern cattle district. The Brahman cross-bred cattle appear likewise to be less affected by other parasites and pestiferous insects, such as mosquitoes, hornflies, gadflies, etc., and to withstand better the warm, dry climate and other semi-tropical conditions present in the gulf section of the United States than do the native cattle. It is also claimed that they make a grade of beef superior to that of the native cattle. Englishmen in India long ago learned that the sacred cattle make excellent beef, the hump, which sometimes reaches a weight of 50 pounds, being especially prized.

About 30 years ago a number of the sacred cattle were introduced in Texas and crossed with native cattle, but as the original strain gradually deteriorated, the department of agriculture was requested by A. P. Borden to make a further importation of Indian cattle for the Pierce ranch with a view of restoring this strain of blood. The secretary granted him this permit, but on account of the very dangerous live stock diseases prevailing in India the department required the strictest possible precautions to prevent the introduction of any of these contagions. Not only were the animals purchased inspected by a representative of the department in India, but also on their arrival here. It was during one of these examinations in quarantine that it was discovered that three of the zebus were infected with surra. These were promptly killed and burned. Subsequent examinations showed others to be infected with the disease—probably carried by flies and mosquitoes—and these were promptly killed. On November 14, 1906, the secretary of agriculture released the animals—33 in number—from quarantine, as the last seven series of test were successively negative and as killing frosts had already occurred, resulting in the disappearance of all flies and mosquitoes.

While the majority of sacred cattle on exhibition in circuses and zoological gardens are of the smaller breeds, weighing about two hundred and fifty pounds and standing not higher than three feet, the types of Indian cattle selected for this importation were of the larger breeds, standing as high as six feet and weighing up to 1,860 pounds.

ABRAHAM'S OAK, PALESTINE

Many pilgrims to that part of Palestine connected with the history of Abraham visit the tree here pictured. It is known as Abraham's oak and is evidently so ancient that the natives find no difficulty in believing the legend that the patriarch sat under the shade of its boughs.

BIGGEST BABY IN WORLD

James Adolph Cody, of Mount Tiry, Ga., is believed to be the biggest baby in the world. At birth he was just an ordinarily big baby, but when about two months old he began growing in size and flesh and kept steadily at it until now, at the age of three years, he is classed among the wonderful babies in the world. If he keeps on growing until he attains manhood he will be a giant. He weighs 115 pounds and measures 44 inches in height, with arms extending he measures 43 inches from the tips of fingers across the shoulders. Other measurements are: Bust, 38 inches; waist, 29 inches; hips, 45 inches; thigh, 25 inches; length of foot, 7 1/2 inches; strength is well in keeping with his size and his appetite is more like that of a big healthy farmer than a three-year-old child. He rides horseback and is fond of the automobile.

NOTHING LIVES IN DEAD SEA

The Dead Sea in Syria is so called because nothing can live in its waters. Owing to its density fish could not sink in it, and some of its salts are powerful antiseptics, fatal to any form of life. The salt of the ocean is nearly all common table salt.

French Author on His Way to This Country.

Havre, Sept. 14.—Pierre Loti, the author of "The Daughter of Heaven," which is to be produced in New York shortly, sailed for New York today on the French liner La Savole.

WILL REOPEN THE HAWTHORNE CASE

Mine Promotion Scandal to Get Fresh Airing.

New York, Sept. 14.—The investigation into the affairs of the Hawthorne Silver and Iron Mines company that resulted in the indictment of Julian Hawthorne, Albert Freeman, a mining promoter, and Josiah Quincy, a Boston lawyer, has been reopened. According to Assistant United States District Attorney Dorr, other men than those already indicted will be involved in the new inquiry. The federal grand jury appeared before Judge Hough in the criminal branch of the United States district court and presented Herbert C. Smyth and Miss Helen F. Rodgers for contempt.

Smyth, who is a member of the law firm of Wellman, Gough & Smyth, had refused to surrender for evidence before the grand jury certain books and papers belonging to the Hawthorne company. He had likewise refused to answer questions concerning the affairs of the mining concern. Judge Hough ruled that the books and papers be delivered forthwith and that Smyth must answer the questions put to him.

Miss Rodgers, who was a stenographer in Freeman's office, got off earlier. It was charged that she was guilty of contempt in that she had repeated to Freeman certain things that had transpired in the grand jury room. Miss Rodgers was awed by the court procedure. She pleaded that she was ignorant of the fact that she had transgressed in telling Freeman what was said by those who testified before the grand jury. Judge Hough, in dismissing her, administered a gentle reprimand.

Turks Getting the Worst of It.

AMUSEMENTS

Few burlesque organizations enroute can boast of the popularity enjoyed by Morris Wainstock's "Jardin DeParis Girls" company, which will be the attraction all next week at the Empire theater, Indianapolis. The style of the entertainment presented by this company is somewhat different from the average burlesque performance. A two act burletta entitled "At the Beach" serves as a vehicle for the company of which Leo Stevens is the principal comedian, while others in his support are Joe Madden, Tom Nolan, Stella Gilmore, Lydia Jospy, known as the "little nightingale" and Helen Marvelle. Thirty pretty girls comprise the chorus, and the song numbers are of the catchy sort. An exceptionally strong vaudeville program is also introduced headed by the Tierney Four and including Rosalie Rose, character comedienne, and "Living Art Studies" the sensation of the musical halls of Paris.

MAY SET ASIDE OHIO'S ELECTION

Action On New Constitution Has Created Turmoil.

BUSINESS MEN ARE AROUSED

Radical Character of Some of the Amendments Adopted at Recent Constitutional Election Has Stirred Commercial Interests, and It is Said Grounds Have Been Discovered For Questioning the People's Decision.

Columbus, O., Sept. 14.—A suit to have the result set aside is contemplated by business interests which strongly opposed the adoption of radical amendments to the Ohio constitution.

During the campaign it was forecasted that such action would be brought, but little attention was paid to the reports because of the flimsy technicalities cited as grounds therefor. However, it appears that lawyers have informed business men there may be good grounds for questioning the people's action, since the constitutional provision relating to new amendments refers to "a majority of the vote cast thereon."

The highest total vote on any amendment was 537,000. The majority for several amendments considered to have carried is not a majority of the figure mentioned. A further point to be made is that the constitutional convention had no legal right to order a special election, as this was purely a legislative function.

WITHDREW THEM

Pennsylvania Progressives Take Roosevelt Electors Off Taft Ticket.

Philadelphia, Sept. 14.—An agreement was reached at a joint conference of Republican and Washington party leaders by which the Roosevelt electors will be withdrawn at once from the Republican ticket and there will be substituted real Republicans who will support the candidacy of President Taft. This action, participated in by representatives of all factions concerned in the settlement of the electoral question, ends the turmoil over the electoral ticket in Pennsylvania. Chairman Wasson of the Republican state committee arranged the conference. Only the electoral situation was considered.

ACTUAL SERVICE

This Now Is the Test of Eligibility to G. A. R. Membership.

Los Angeles, Sept. 14.—That only men who saw actual service in the civil war are eligible to membership in the Grand Army of the Republic, was decided definitely by delegates to the national encampment of the G. A. R., by a majority of four-fifths of the delegates present.

The question of the next meeting place was not decided, but the 1913 gathering is likely to take place at Gettysburg, Pa.

The convention also voted against a proposal from the national officers that the dues be raised.

INDIAN UPRISING

Brisk Battle Reported From the City of Oaxaca.

Mexico City, Sept. 14.—Rebellious Indians attacked the city of Oaxaca, cutting off the water supply. The garrison immediately sallied forth with artillery. The fight is progressing in all the suburbs. A serious uprising is feared in the states of Nuevo Leon and Coahuila. The conspirators plan to begin by taking Saltillo and Naderos and the town of San Pedro. Troops are rushing to the scene.

FRESH REVOLUTION

New Trouble in Santo Domingo May Lead to Intervention.

Washington, Sept. 14.—The United States is about to intervene in Santo Domingo for the protection of foreign lives and property.

A fresh revolution believed to be in part a renewal of the recent one thought to have been squelched, is threatening American and other interests.

Governor Wilson will address the National Conservation congress at Indianapolis on Oct. 3.

Doll Servants of Corpse

So rapidly is the far east being westernized that there can be no doubt that in very few years to come such Oriental ceremonies as that here illustrated will be merely things of memory. The photograph was taken on the occasion of the recent burial of Princess Tein, sister of one of the most important members of the Chinese imperial family. The funeral procession passing through the Tartar City, Peking, was an extraordinary sight. The body, in a heavy coffin, under a silken canopy, was borne by twenty-four coolies, and accompanied by money-throwers, whose duty it was to distribute "cash" that the dead princess' passage to the other world might be fittingly paid. Also in the procession were the "servants" shown in the photograph, large dolls of paper and bamboo, holding the tea bowl, tea pot, and pipe of their mistress. These were burnt at the cemetery during the final ceremony.

LONDON'S WONDERFUL BEAST

Residents of London and visitors to that city are wondering just how to classify the two quaint beasts in stone that have been placed outside the entrance to the new King Edward VII. gallery at the British museum. They seem to be a cross between the British lion and the Sphinx and are admittedly not an artistic success.

OCTOPUS GRIPPED DIVER

A naval diver at Toulon, France, was suddenly attacked by a giant octopus while under water in the harbor. He gave the hoisting signal and was hauled to the surface together with the octopus, whose tentacles, said to be 25 feet long, were wrapped around him. The diver was unconscious. The octopus held fast to the diver until it was stabbed to death. It weighed 135 pounds, and the suckers on its tentacles were a trifle larger than silver dollars.

NO GRASS ON HIS GRAVE

A strange story comes from Watauga county, North Carolina, just across the Blue Ridge from east Tennessee. It is told by the editor of a weekly newspaper, who says that while attending a burial in a cemetery recently his attention was called to a grave entirely bare of grass and apparently as hard packed on the surface as the dirt in a public highway. He was told this grave contained the dust of man named Hatton, who died forty or more years ago. "Although all these years have elapsed," said the editor, "not a sprig of grass or a flower of any kind has grown upon the grave." He inquired the cause and the mountain folk explained that the man buried there was extremely profane and died with curses on his lips.

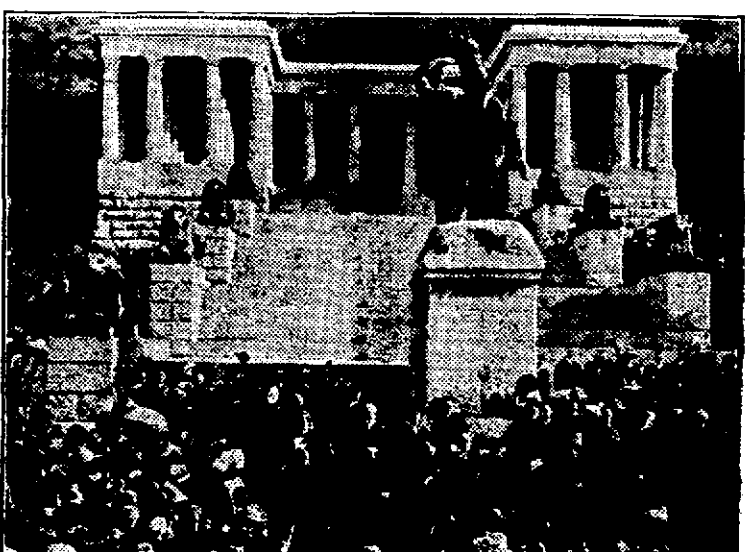

KING OF THE LOBSTERS

The largest lobster sent to Fulton market, New York city, in many years was received in the fish stall of John Dias. Weighing 31 pounds and measuring 24 inches in all, with claws 13 inches in length, this titan crustacean—one of a family of three—was, indeed, a sight worth seeing. His mate, weighing 20 pounds and measuring 18 inches, carried off second honors, while the offspring weighed 11 pounds and was 15 inches in length.

PIG COMMITS SUICIDE

Among the suicides chronicled in the papers as being due to the heat is that of a pig. It was found head downward in a brook on the state farm at Windsor, Conn.

Memorial to Cecil Rhodes

Rarely has there been a more appropriate memorial than that erected in honor of Cecil Rhodes on his favorite spot on the slopes of Table Mountain. The temple carries out a dream of Rhodes' own, and in its impressive simplicity emphasizes his ideal of power, as Watts' statue of "Physical Energy" erected at the bottom of the steps, symbolizes great deeds done and great deeds still to be achieved. The eight lions are the work of the late J. M. Swan, R. A. The temple is of the granite of Table Mountain, and there is a bust of Rhodes inside the structure. The illustration shows the dedication of the memorial by Lord Grey.

New style is not necessarily correct style

But there is one way to be safe in choosing.

At the beginning of every season a host of new ideas in dress are shoveled out in the market.

Some are experiments feebly hoping to find favor.

Some are far-fetched guesses at what Paris is going to show later on.

Some are mere freaks.

Some are destined to quick oblivion and some are destined to find too much favor and become too common.

But there are others that are really authoritative; truly representative of what Paris is endorsing; sure to be worn by well dressed women the world over.

How can you tell "which is which?" You are safe if you buy here. There are ways of knowing the true from the imitation; the product of authority from the guess.

Our showing for fall and winter is ready. Yours is the loss if you do not see it.

STAGE ALL SET FOR BIG GAME

Everything Ready For Second Contest of Series With Maxwell Team of Newcastle.

HARRY GEISEL WILL UMPIRE

Central League Official Will be on the Job—Record Breaker Crowd Expected.

The stage is all set for the ball game tomorrow between the locals and the strong Maxwell team of Newcastle. The fans are anxiously awaiting the call to "play ball." This, the second game of the series, promises to be a battle from start to finish and whichever team wins will know they have been in a ball game.

At the suggestion of Manager Williams of the Newcastle team, Manager Maibach has secured Harry Geisel of Indianapolis to umpire the contest. Geisel is an official in the Central League, which recently finished the season, and is a capital umpire. The reason for securing Geisel is that he is an outsider and both teams will get a square deal. Manager Maibach is anxious to beat Newcastle fair and square and thus conceded to Williams' request.

The special train from Newcastle, bringing the team and 400 rooters will arrive here over the L. E. & W. about 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The fans there are looking forward to a brilliant game and are worked up as much as the local fans. The Newcastle special will return at six o'clock.

As the base ball season is nearing a close, not many more games will be played here. For this reason, if nothing more a record crowd will be on hand. The game will be called at 3 o'clock.

LOCAL TRAINERS NOT SO WELL UP

Rushville Horseman Fail to Get in Money on Getaway Day at Race Meets.

MORRISTOWN HORSE WINS

Local trainers did not do so well yesterday as they have been doing this week. Harrie Jones failed to get in the money at Fort Wayne although he had two horses entered at Fort Wayne. Clell Maple did not start at Terre Haute, according to the summaries.

Curt Gosnell won fourth money in the 2:16 trot at Fairmount, West Va., yesterday with Dr. Athol best time being 2:16 1/4. Posey Patchen, owned by L. R. Cole of Morristown, won the 2:20 pace for three-year-olds at the Goshen fair yesterday, she going the best heat in 2:25 1/4.

Harrie Jones finished fifth with Lily Patchen, a daughter of the Patchen-Boy, in the 2:12 pace at Fort Wayne, and took the same position in the summaries with Constance in the 2:22 trot. Thursday Mr. Jones finished third in the 2:24 trot with Azim.

Ruth Randal, John Dagler's trotting mare, won the unfinished 2:18 trot at Fort Wayne Thursday. They raced four heats Wednesday. Ruth Randal and Capitola taking two each.

JONES HAS GOOD WEEK.

Western Horseman: Harrie Jones of Rushville, Ind., had a very successful week at State fair races. Out of eight starts he was but twice out of the money, was twice second, twice third, once fourth, and won with College Jim, giving him a record of 2:06 1/4, which was the fastest heat of the week. In the 2:12 pace, he won the first heat with Mabel B., by Sir Charles, giving her a record of 2:07, and was a contender in the remaining heats.

LIFE DEVOTED TO MINISTRY ENDS

bury University at Greencastle, now DePauw University. As a pleasant commentary on his useful life, it should be noted that every one of his eight children attended and were graduated from DePauw University. Thus did he prove his allegiance to his alma mater. His two youngest children, twin boys, Earl and Ernest, were graduated only last June, carrying off the honors of their class.

After leaving Asbury University, the Rev. Mr. Marlatt devoted the next three years of his life to teaching school. He gave up the life of the pedagogue to take up the ministry and gave his life's blood to his work for thirty-nine years. He has preached in many Indiana cities, and has a host of former parishioners, who will be deeply grieved to hear of his death.

The Rev. Mr. Marlatt took as his wife November 5, 1868, Miss Anna Collins of Scott county, Indiana. To the union eight children were born, all of whom survive. The widow also is left to mourn his loss.

The surviving children are: Miss Mary C. Marlatt of Connersville; Mrs. J.H. Scholl of this city; Walter Marlatt, editor of the Evening News, published in Kenasha, Wisconsin; Miss Anna C. Marlatt, formerly instructor of Latin in the Rushville high school and now a member of the faculty of the Connersville high school; Mrs. Fred Miller of Connersville; Mrs. Paul Peter Willis of Indianapolis; Earl Marlatt, principal of the Raleigh school in this county, and Ernest Marlatt, who is residing in Connersville for the present. A sister, Mrs. Ellen Walker of Newcastle, also survives.

The body will be laid to rest in the Doddridge Chapel cemetery, east of Milton, in Wayne county, near the scene of his childhood days. The funeral will be held Monday morning at the First M. E. church in Connersville. The sermon will be preached by the Rev. V. W. Tavis of this city, assisted by several other ministers.

THIS CHILD HAS 8 GRANDPARENTS

Few Babies Can Enter the World and Boast of Such a Line of Ancestors.

THERE ARE FOUR GENERATIONS

Friday morning when an eight and one-half pound daughter arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Huffman it was discovered that the new baby had eight living grandparents, a fact that but few babes could boast of in this country; and another remarkable thing worthy of note is that on the mother's side the four grandparents or four generation of women are also the oldest living in their respective families, says the Lewisville Road Traveler.

The eight grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Enos Huffman, parents of the baby's father; Solomon Stewart and wife of Shelby county, parents of Roy's mother; Harry Schwartz and wife, Mrs. Huffman's parents, and T. B. VanDyke and wife, parents of Mrs. Schwartz.

Although it is no uncommon thing to see four generations represented, it is doubtful if another case could be referred to in this vicinity where a babe has eight living grandparents, but such is the case in Lewisville.

FINE PAID.

Greeley Ferguson was fined five dollars and costs this morning in police court by Mayor Black for public intoxication. His fine was paid. It was Ferguson's fifth time before the Mayor.

MARRIED BY GILLESPIE.

Miss Lulu Craig, the sixteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jehu Craig and Hollis Dickason of Decatur county, were married this afternoon in the clerk's office by the Rev. J. F. Gillespie.

Good Shoes Are An Insurance Against a Good Many Ills

A list of illnesses that may be traced to poor shoes—to the improper protection of the feet—would be startling long. Any doctor could rattle off a whole catalogue of them—and could tell you that poor shoes improperly fitted send to him a large proportion of his patients. Good shoes, properly fitted, therefore, are a form of Health Insurance more important than you ever imagined. Our New Fall Foster Shoes for Women are in, and we want you to see and try them on.
